PLEA FOR WARS BY A BISHOP

PORTLAND, May 17.—A plea for war as a means of developing the nobler side of men and women, delivered by Bishop Codman of Maine, startled the Episcopal Conference to-day.

"Without war a nation would degenerate, would become effeminate morally and physically," he declared. "It is a mistake to aim at disarmament. War has developed noble soldiers, noble statesmen and noble women."

He caused another stir by declaring that the Episcopal Church is "altogether too respectable and over-refined." He said:

"While we all hate the evils and horrors of war, we may agree in the unquestioned value of such an international code and the development of a code of international equity; yet I believe we should be on our guard lest we carry the talk of peace and disarmament too far. War is indeed an evil and cannot be carried on without frightful suffering and horrible consequences. War, like the principle of evil, is in the world for the development of manliness. It is a training in moral courage, in self-discipline, in zeal for righteousness, in patriotism, in the sense of the value of unity, and in the contempt for social vices that destroy national strength.

War Develops Statesmen.

"The world has never got along without war, as it has never got along without evil, and war has certainly developed noble soldiers, noble statesmen and noble women. Without war a nation would degenerate, would become effeminate morally and physically. Surely when we realize that one of our names for God is the Lord of Hosts, and inspired Scriptures tell us how the Lord of Hosts led His people to battle; when we bear in mind that the profession of a Christian is that of a soldier enlisted to fight under the banner of Christ, who is called the Captain of our salvation; when we have learned by experience that one of the best ways to develop Christian manhood in the boys is to organize them under military discipline and place before them military ideas, we ought to be very careful lest in preaching peace and disarmament and international arbitration, we shall so discourage the warlike nature of our boys that we shall find ourselves utterly unprepared to defend our honor and our homes in case of an attack by those who have been tried in military discipline and tactics.

Criticism of the Church.

"Sometimes I think that the Episcopal Church is altogether too respectable and over-refined, because our clergy are so carried away with the beauties of the prayer book service and ritual and ornate ceremonies, or so anxious to have guilds and organizations, where they meet over and over again the same souls, that they forget the greater object of winning the masses."

CARUSO'S THROAT CURED.

LONDON, May 17.—Dr. William Lloyd, a throat specialist, after another examination, has given Enrico Caruso a clean bill of health. In an authorized statement the physician declared that the tenor's vocal chords were absolutely normal and the larynx free of the catarrh from which he had suffered since his arrival from New York.

WOODEN LEG BALKS BLIND MAN

In the Municipal Court today they sent a blind man to the House of Correction for assault and battery on a man with a wooden leg.

The blind man is Frank E. Riley, 57 years old, of the Arcadia Hotel in Washington street. Hosea L. Wheeler, 65 years old, a Civil War veteran, of High street, Charlestown, has the wooden leg.

Judge Bennett was anxious to get at the facts.

It appeared that the gentlemen are rival newspaper merchants and that each favors a stand not far from the tunnel entrance at Summer and Washington streets.

Hit on Wooden Leg.

"This blind man," said the man with the wooden leg, pointing to Riley, "formerly had the stand to himself. He saw fit to go down South early in the Spring, however, and neglect his patrons. That seemed to be my opportunity, Your Honor, and I was quick to take advantage of it.

"Riley came back, a while ago, and finding me tending to business began to show signs of peevishness. Every time he passed me, apparently groping along with his cane, he would take two or three extra walops at me, laying the cane viciously across my upper legs. Yesterday he swatted me three times. On his fourth appearance I—ha, ha, ha—excuse me, Your Honor—I—hee, hee, hee!—stuck the wooden leg out and busted his pesky old cane all to bits!

Blind Man Silent.

"Then we clinched, and———"

"I came along just then, may it please the court," said Policeman Manning of the City Hall Station, "and attracted by the crowd, saw the blind man sailing into the man with the wooden leg and giving him Hail Columbia. I had to lock him up for assault and battery."

The blind man said nothing. "Ten days," said the court.

"T. Roosevelt," a disorderly Pemberton square pigeon, disturbed the hearing by flying in at the open window and refusing to be shooed out. Before Judge Bennett would go on with the next case the court officers were ordered to eject the bird of peace.

LOTTIE LOGAN IS PUT ON PROBATION

Lottie Logan, the sixteen-year-old Lynn girl who accuses Dr. Clarence W. Stetson with being principal and Isaac Marks, a Lynn merchant, with being accessory to illegal treatment performed upon her, was arraigned again before Judge Lummus in the District Court in that city to-day on the charge of being a stubborn child. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Logan of No. 449 Essex street, is the complainant against the girl, who almost died recently in the Lynn Hospital.

Lottie was arraigned two weeks ago on the stubbornness charge and the case continued until to-day. This morning she pleaded guilty and on recommendation of Deputy Police Chief David Bartleet of Lynn was placed on probation and permitted to go home with her mother.

NEWTON WOMAN IN AUTO WRECK

HARTFORD, Ct., May 17.—Mrs. Thomas S. Allen of Newton is in a serious condition at the St. Francis Hospital as a result of her husband's automobile turning turtle and burying its five occupants in the wreckage. The accident happened between this city and Springfield while Mr. and Mrs. Allen and their guests were on their way from Boston to Philadelphia. A tire of the car burst and the next instant the car turned turtle.

ARMY AERONAUT GAVE LIFE TO SAVE OTHERS

WASHINGTON, May 17.—That Lieutenant George E. M. Kelly, U. S. A., who was thrown from his aeroplane at San Antonio May 10, met a hero's death, was the practical verdict of the army board whose report has been received by Chief Signal Officer Allen. The board says the accident was due to efforts of Lieutenant Kelly to avoid endangering men in the Eleventh Infantry camp, necessitating his making a sharp left turn to avoid the tents, and thus straining the control.

FIRE IN COPLEY SQUARE HOTEL

Fire in Copley Square Hotel shortly before 11 a. m. to-day caused a brief panic among guests who were in the fashionable Back Bay hostelry at the time, and those who were still in bed rushed into hallways in scant attire.

Bell boys and other employes ran through the hotel reassuring guests and the scare was over immediately.

Miss Augusta Redmond, chambermaid, was the heroine of the occasion. She discovered a blaze in a linen closet which might have been disastrous if not detected as soon as it was. She was working on the second floor and was in the hallway when she saw smoke filtering out of the closet. She immediately sounded the house alarm and another outside alarm brought the firemen.

Before the firemen arrived the house brigade, consisting of bell boys, porters and other employes, had begun to fight the flames. It was a stubborn little blaze. It ate through the wall and between partitions and was creeping towards the third floor when the fire apparatus clanged to the scene. The firemen laid no hose. The crew of the chemical engine extinguished the blaze in a few seconds.

It was in a closet on the Exeter street side of the hotel. The damage will not, it is estimated, exceed $500.

There was great excitement in the house during the fight with the flames, and timid guests were alarmed by smoke in the hallways. Those who had not dressed themselves for the street made hurried toilets, but there was no need for them to leave their rooms.

CAMORRA CHIEF STILL CONFIDENT

VITERBO, Italy, May 17.—Jubilant over the showing which he and his fellows have made, Enrico Alfano, head of the Camorra, predicted to-day that all the men and the one woman on trial would be acquitted.

Alfano, who showed the effects of his violent outbreak in court late yesterday, when his "grief" over the mention of his brother Ciro's name overcame him, declared to-day that Abatemaggio, the betrayer, had been unmasked and his story shaken.

"The jury must surely be convinced by this time that Abatemaggio's tale is but a poor attempt at romance," he declared.

DIRECT ELECTION MOVE IN THE HOUSE

An order urging Senators Lodge and Crane, in the name of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, to vote for the direct election of United States Senators was filed in the House to-day by Frank J. Donohue through Representative Robert N. Turner of Waltham. Action on it was postponed till to-morrow.

The order was presented as a means of blocking the Senate from killing legislation which the House might pass putting the Massachusetts Legislature on record as favoring the direct election of Senators.

ASSAILANT OF GIRL IS JAILED

George Hart of Washington street and Fred Henderson of No. 198 Boston street, Lynn, were arraigned before Judge Lummus in the District Court in that city today on the charge of brutally assaulting little Estelle Gaulet of No. 9 Relay street while she was picking flowers in the Pine Grove Cemetery last week. In commenting upon the conduct of the boys, who are but a few years older than their seven-year-old victim, Judge Lummus said, "It was a villainous performance."

Young Hart was sentenced to the Lyman School for Boys and his mother appealed. She said she could control him, but is burdened with the care of other children and doesn't know where her husband is. The case of the Henderson lad was continued for a week to give the police a chance to look up his record.

Little Estelle was in court, and her mother, Mrs. Joseph Gaulet, says she still bears the marks on her body of the beating given her by the boys. Mrs. Gaulet testified that a stranger brought her child home and that the girl's clothing was dripping wet and her body covered with bruises.

Police Inspector Murray testified the boys confessed they had abused the girl and thrown her into the pond three times. Young Henderson while a witness tried to throw blame on Hart, who, he said, had been more cruel to the girl than he. Henderson said he only struck the child once with a stick, but he admitted he had helped strip her. "Hart threw her into the pond," he said, "and I told him not to."

"Why did you treat her so?" asked the judge.

"I don't know, just for fun," was the best excuse Henderson had to offer.

When Hart testified he said Henderson was culpable as he.

WHEW! HERE ARE SOME RIPE EGGS

Talk about ancient and infirm eggs! Great Caesar's Ghost! Listen to this.

One thousand nice, ripe eggs arrived in Boston to-day, each and every egg, ladies and gentlemen, having reached the ancient and honorable age of one hundred years.

Over in China they like old things, particularly eggs. They keep an egg there till it ceases to be just fresh—so says Captain Armstrong of the steamer Satsuma, which brought the eggs. Then the Chinese tenderly and fondly bury the eggs in the cellars of some old pagoda and there they lay oh, for a hundred years or so, till, according to Chinese taste, they become very fancy and fresh again. They are dug up, carefully packed in tins and sealed and sent to Chinese in other parts of the world who long for home food. The eggs which came to Boston to-day, in Captain Armstrong's keeping, are consigned to Chinese restaurants here and in New York.

200 ARE NEAR DEATH IN MINE EXPLOSION

EDMONTON, Alberta, May 17.—Two hundred men narrowly escaped death when fire, resulting from an explosion, broke out at the mines of the Alberta Coal Company at Morinville early to-day. Several were hurt in the rush to escape. The workings of the mine are believed to have been completely destroyed and the loss may reach $300,000.

RESCUED DELIRIOUS IN DORY

Insensible in the bottom of his dory that was half filled with water, Raymond Blakemore, son of a Boston real estate broker, who, while in a demented condition, took a thirteen-foot dory and sailed out of Ipswich River Monday morning at 2 a. m., was picked up seventy miles east of Boston Light at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by the crew of the fishing schooner Mary E. Cooney and was landed at T wharf today. It was four hours after his rescue before he was revived. Blakemore was hysterical and weak, and physicians say his condition is serious. Blakemore mumbles incoherently of his trip.

Captain Frank Cooney, one of the best known skippers of T wharf, whose vigilance resulted in the recovery of the young man alive, says that the little sailing dory could not have stayed afloat six hours more.

Buffeted in a Gale.

The craft in which Blakemore had been at sea for thirty-eight hours, buffeted about in a terrific gale on Monday night, was almost a wreck. The sail was hanging loose from the slender mast, the rudder post was gone, and the craft was half full of water. Comber after comber had dashed water into the dory until Blakemore's body, lying on the bottom of the boat, was half under water. The man's head rested against a broken oar which undoubtedly saved him from drowning.

With the skipper unconscious the craft was driven at the will of winds and waves, while the revenue cutter Gresham, the gunboat Marietta and the life savers of the New England coast were scanning the sea in vain for some sight of the craft. Blakemore's voyage is the strangest in the history of this port. That his frail craft remained afloat so long is considered a marvel by T wharf fishermen.

Weeps at Sight of Land.

Blakemore can tell but little or nothing of his wild time at sea. Questioned by Captain Cooney he mumbled about "his wife" and "I was bound to New York." When land was sighted to-day Blakemore was brought on deck. The sight of land caused him to weep bitterly. When landed at T wharf he seemed to know his surroundings and said he "guessed he would go up to his father's office on Milk street.

Here is Captain Cooney's own story of the rescue:

"I was coming in from Georges bank with a good-sized fare of fish when I spied a strange dot on the horizon. I got my glasses and saw it was a dory. The sail was hanging limp from the masthead and I knew that something was wrong. The craft was far off to windward, and it took two long tacks to bring me up to it. With the glasses I had made out a form in the bottom of the boat. I shouted time and again, but got no answer, and thought the man was dead. I hove to right off the tossing dory and launched a dory.

Thought Man Was Dead.

"Two of my men rowed to the craft and took off the body. When it was hauled on deck I thought it was certainly that of a dead man. I felt the heart and got a good response. I took the man down into the cabin and applied hot drinks and the methods of resuscitation which we fishermen have to know as many's the time fishermen come on deck all in from fatigue and have to be worked over. It was four hours before he regained consciousness. I saw a wild look in his eye and I knew that he was not in his right mind. I did not trouble him as I saw that complete rest was the only thing that would save his life. The dory was hauled on board and placed in our nest of dories.

"It was 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when we picked him up. I was afraid he would die before we could get into port. There was little or no wind last night, and it took me longer than usual to get into port.

"The cook fixed up some dainties, such as milk toast, and we gave him frequent sips of whiskey. I gave him a little quinine as a bracer. These all had their effect,

DESCRIPTION OF GERTRUDE QUIMBY, THE MISSING GIRL

- Clothing, a black tailor-made suit.
- Shoes, high, black, with buttons.
- Hat, a black straw, sailor shape.
- Hair, blonde, abundant.
- Eyes, dark blue.
- Height, five feet three inches.
- Weight, 120 pounds.
- Age, fifteen years.

FEAR QUIMBY GIRL DETAINED

H. M. Quimby of No. 510 Audubon road leaves Boston to-night for New York city to start a search for his fifteen-year-old daughter, Gertrude Quimby, who has mysteriously disappeared. That the beautiful young girl is in New York is the belief of her parents, who think she may have been lured away from her home by a desire to go on the stage.

Mr. Quimby will be assisted in his efforts by the New York police. The only clew in the possession of the father is the note left by Miss Quimby in her pocketbook. The note gives the address of "Gerald W. Gardner, No. 507 West Thirty-seventh street, New York city."

New York detectives have already looked up the address, according to word received at police headquarters in Boston to-day. It is said they found a stable at No. 507 West Thirty-seventh street. This afternoon they are searching for Gardner, whoever he may be.

Detectives at Work.

At the request of the Boston police, two New York sleuths have been assigned to the case. Mr. Quimby, the father of the girl, is to co-operate with them, and he will either ask the aid of other detectives or else will employ a private detective agency to assist in his search.

The girl's disappearance is to-day as much a mystery as it has been for the previous four days she has been missing. It was learned to-day that she had several admirers, young men of the best families in the Back Bay. It was said the girl had been carrying on a correspondence with them through the medium of two married women who were her neighbors. One of these young men, it is claimed, was recently sent to New York by his parents to prevent an elopement, and a letter from Miss Quimby to him asking for money to pay her railroad fare is said to be in the possession of the girl's family.

Fears Girl Is Detained.

Mrs. Quimby is greatly worried.

"I am afraid Gertie has fallen into the power of some wicked man and is held a prisoner," was one of the fears she expressed. "Still, her action may have been one of those hasty acts that we sometimes take without giving it any thought at all. We have known for some time of Gertrude's ambition, and while we never seriously opposed her yet we did think she was too young for the stage yet."

The last seen of the girl in Boston, it was learned to-day, was when she was given five cents to defray her car fare to the South station. She got on the car in front of No. 808 Beacon street. She has not been seen since.

HOLD BALL TO AID CHELSEA STRIKERS

The trade unionists of Chelsea have arranged for a big May party and ball to aid the striking shoe workers of that city, 400 of whom have been out at the Heard street factory of the A. G. Walton Shoe Company since April 1. The affair will be held at Congress Hall, Broadway, Chelsea, to-morrow evening, with dancing from 8 to 2. Eleven hundred tickets already have been disposed of, and the entire proceeds will be given to the strikers, 125 of whom are girls. Not one of these girls have broken away from the union since the strike started, and only four of the men members of the organization have gone to work in opposition. Similar parties, balls, and lectures have been arranged for by the United Shoe Workers of America in Providence, New York and in Salem, the strikers holding charters from that general organization.

JUSTICE KNOWLTON HAS EYE TROUBLE

Chief Justice Marcus P. Knowlton of the State Supreme Court, whose home is in Springfield, is ill at the Parker House with a serious affliction of eye trouble, which came upon him suddenly. He is consulting specialists in an effort to overcome the affliction. He said last evening that the trouble first became noticeable about a fortnight ago, and that he is unable to read and write. Up to the present time he has been able to perform the duties of his office, however, by consulting with and receiving the assistance of the other justices of the Supreme Court. It is not expected the affliction will cause him to give up his work.

BIG RUSH TO BUY IN STATE ST.

Now that the financial world can dismiss from its mind the question of the legality of the American corporation, "State Street" has taken on a much changed aspect, and where on Monday everything was indigo to-day it is rosy.

Stock and bond brokers are now about the most cheerful people to be found in town, for their offices are crowded with investors and traders. Everybody is talking higher prices and little attention is paid to the pessimist when he is found.

A fact which brokers consider even more important than the volume of business being received is that very much of the buying is for investment account, and that at least a third of the orders received by brokers to buy stocks cannot be filled because they are wanted at lower prices than prevails. This, however, is a good omen, as it indicates that any attempt to smash prices will be featured by the support these buying orders will give.

Buying in State street is not confined to the brokers' offices, and everybody from the soda man to the cigar man reports a most satisfactory business. The ones who say they are getting the cream of the optimism are the haberdashers and automobile salesmen, for the brokers are surely blowing themselves now that commission money is coming easy.

NEW ANTI-TRUST LAW IS DEMANDED BY PROGRESSIVES

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Cabinet members, justices and political leaders of both parties to-day asserted their belief that Congress would certainly enact a new statute to regulate interstate corporations in place of the Sherman anti-trust law.

It was held by the progressives that the Supreme Court decision calling for the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company nullifies the Sherman act and takes from the government its only weapon against trust aggressions. A new statute, it is believed, will be framed to wipe out the court's classification of "reasonable" and "unreasonable" monopolies.

The more closely the decision is studied the more determined the progressives of both parties are becoming that the law must be amended in such a way as to make it impossible for the Supreme Court to limit combinations in restraint of trade to such combinations as the courts may decree are "unreasonable."

President Disappointed.

Disappointment among this group of statesmen is keen. Among the regulars and in administration circles there is a feeling of misgiving concerning the court's interpretation of the law and the holding that a "reasonable" monopoly was not in contravention of the statute. President Taft is himself much disappointed.

It is apparent that the decision will result in a great deal of agitation in Congress for an amendment of the statute or the enactment of the federal incorporation bill proposed by the President in January, 1910.

In view of the particular business for which the President called the special session together, it is unlikely that any special message will be sent in or that the executive will do anything at this time to divert the minds of members of Congress from the particular duties now confronting them. On their own initiative, however, Congressmen will take up the question. Already the progressive Republicans are arranging for conferences for the consideration of amendments to the law upon which they can agree and which eventually will be offered with their support back of it.

From the viewpoint of the administration it is believed a federal incorporation law would be preferable to the amendment of the Sherman act. As a whole, the cabinet is more likely to favor the former.

CHANDLER BARKER OF WINCHENDON DEAD

F. Chandler Barker, a prominent citizen of Winchendon, and for years engaged in the leather business in that town, died today at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. H. Symmes, in Woburn, where he had been stopping for the past two weeks. He was born January 26, 1829. He is survived by one son and two daughters.

OIL TRUST RULING DISAPPOINTING TO THE PROGRESSIVES

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—This word "unreasonable" has become in a night the most important word in the new political dictionary.

Upon it hangs the popular approval or disapproval of the Supreme Court's now famous decision in the Standard Oil case.

Upon it hangs the satisfaction of the great interests and their champions throughout the country. Upon it hangs the content and the apprehension of the progressive Republican party. Upon it hangs the real status of the mighty and enduring battle between the people and the selfish and greedy corporations. And upon it rests the balance of judgment of President Taft and the Supreme Court. The Anti-Trust League advocates, alert and vigorous, have fought for years the insertion of the word "unreasonable" in all anti-trust legislation.

Hepburn of Iowa in his proposed amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law used the word in the same general application as Justice White read in his decision. President Roosevelt impulsively fell into the line of error and asked Congress to pass the Hepburn bill without the variation of a line or letter.

Defeated Hepburn Bill.

William Randolph Hearst and the American and the anti-trust newspapers marshalled a mighty protest against the bill. The Anti-Trust League fell into line. And the Hepburn bill never came out of committee.

Most striking of all is the difference between President Taft and Justice White, but just now appointed.

In his message on Federal corporation, January 8, 1910, President Taft, himself a great lawyer, and universally believed to be some day a chief justice of the Supreme Court, in discussing the insertion of this word "unreasonable" into the anti-trust statute, said:

"I venture to think that this is to put into the hands of the court a power impossible to exercise on any consistent principle which will insure the uniformity of decision essential to just judgment. It is to thrust upon the courts a burden that they have no precedent to enable them to carry, and to give them a power approaching the arbitrary, the abuse of which might involve our whole judicial system in disaster."

And yet this is the very "burden" and "impossibility" fixed upon the court by the decision read from the lips of the eminent jurist whom President Taft has just now appointed.

Taft and White Differ.

La Follette, in the Senate, dramatically flung into the face of the President the wide divergence between his Chief Justice and himself. Attorney-General Wickersham declares the decision maintains every proposition contended for by the government.

The progressive and the anti-trust advocates are, without exception, openly depressed over the decision. The line of divergence is sharp and distinct. Gary and Guggenheim exult. Wall Street rejoices and stocks rise jubilantly upward. La Follette, bolder than his fellows, fearlessly condemns the decision and declares that the Supreme Court has written into law a word which Congress has refused to put there.

Bailey, of the conservatives, says the Chief Justice has construed the statute as it ought to be.

Culberson, Bailey's "progressive" Texas colleague, declares flatly, "that the decision of the court was simply legislation from the bench."

Adamson, the Georgian, says the Supreme Court exceeded its rights and the lawyers of the Anti-Trust League go further still, and hold that the decision will give wings and power to the progressive slogan among the people for recall, including the judges.

Progressives Displeased.

I have yet to meet a progressive in Washington who is pleased with the court deliverance. The impression most frequently expressed among them is that the Sherman anti-trust law has been weakened by the decision.

On the contrary there is not a Standard Oil employe of high or low degree on the street or elsewhere who is not bathed in smiles and satisfaction, which must radiate from a higher source.

No formal meeting has yet been held, but at an informal conference of progressive senators it was desired to press an amendment to cure the weakness in the Supreme Court decision. The idea of these senators was expressed in these brief lines:

"No combination in restraint of trade shall be regarded as 'reasonable' within the terms of this act."

In this connection there comes directly from the stir and vitality of the House of Representatives a striking victory for Mr. Stanley of Kentucky and his long, able and eloquent fight for an investigation of the Steel Trust, in which he has been ably assisted by the Anti-Trust League. The committee was appointed with Stanley at the head of it.

La Follette Displeased.

This investigation and its results will bring sharply to a test the vitality and efficiency of the Supreme Court decision, and that it will be presented with remarkable energy and force there can be no doubt.

Many Senators are willing to talk in private. La Follette is one Senator who is always ready to give his convictions to the public. And this is what Robert M. La Follette said:

"I have had no opportunity to read, much less thoughtfully study, the decision of the court in the Standard Oil case and am unable to express an opinion at first hand. I heard only a part of Justice White's oral statement, but I did hear all of Justice Harlan's statement of his reasons for dissenting. They were given with great clearness and force.

"Assuming that he correctly interprets the decision of the court, then I say that the Supreme Court has written into the law a construction which that court has heretofore decided to be unwarranted and unsafe.

"It is this very construction which the trust and combinations have sought to engraft upon the law for many years.

Calls Ruling Disappointing.

"If it shall be found that this decision in effect amends the anti-trust law as Judge Harlan asserts, it will prove the most conspicuous and the most unfortunate example of legislation by judicial construction which our history affords.

"While it is gratifying to those who oppose monopolization of industry that the court orders the dissolution of the Standard Oil combination, it is disappointing that, in doing so, it deemed it necessary to assume, as Justice Harlan states, executive power and to overrule the decisions laid down in the traffic association and other cases brought to prohibit all restraint of trade of interstate commerce.

"The doctrine laid down in the earlier cases was approved by the country, by lawyers who are not retained by combinations, and by all students of economics."

LYNN SHOE STRIKE NEAR SETTLEMENT

Settlement of the strike at the shoe factory of the A. E. Little Company, Lynn, seemed in sight to-day when a committee of employes of the factory laid a plan before the members of the Lasters' Union, the seventy members of which who were employed at the factory went out on strike six weeks ago. As a result nearly 1,000 other employes have been laid off. The plan has been approved by A. E. Little, head of the factory, and only awaits the approval of the union. It calls for the return to work of the strikers and the settlement of the trouble by a committee of six employes of the factory and the members of the corporation. The lasters struck because the firm introduced a new last upon which they said they could not make their former wages.

WATCHMAN WESTON DIES SUDDENLY

John H. Weston, a veteran of the Civil War, for sixteen years State House watchman, died suddenly to-day at his home, No. 53 Mt. Vernon street, of apoplexy. Mr. Weston was born in Salem November 14, 1832. In 1862 he enlisted in Company E of the Third Massachusetts Cavalry and attained the rank of lieutenant in that organization, but was forced to resign in 1863 because of injuries. In 1895 he entered the employ of the State as a watchman at the State House. He was retired by Governor Draper at his own request on December 1st of last year.

$9,200,000 LAND DEAL BY MELLEN

The New Haven Railroad will take back from the Park Square Trust, which it created for the purpose of exploiting the property at a capitalization of $9,200,000, the land on which the old Providence station stood.

The New Haven will pay in addition to the transfer price a sum sufficient to compensate the trustees for all expense to which they have been put in the development of the property.

This action was decided upon to-day as a result of the Supreme Court decision that declared the creation of the trust illegal and the transfer of the property invalid.

The city of Boston, which had been induced to make ready for widening of streets and other improvements in connection with the development, will lose no money, for the plans for street changes in contemplation had not gone beyond the drawing up of plans.

Had Expended $50,000.

But so sure were the trustees and the New Haven people who controlled the trust of the successful outcome of their schemes that about $50,000 had already been spent by the trustees to acquire two abutting pieces of real estate. For these the New Haven road will pay.

The AMERICAN to-day put the following questions to the officials of the New Haven, and received the replies given below:

Q.—Will it be necessary for the trustees to deed the property back to the road?

A.—The property was sold to the trustees for $5,200,000. It will be sold back for the same price plus what expense the trustees have been put to in connection with their development of the property.

Q.—What plan is now contemplated by the New Haven for the disposal of the property?

A.—The directors of the New Haven must devise some other scheme for the disposal of the property.

Plan of Valuation.

The New Haven officials declined to reply to the questions:

What warrant was there for putting a valuation of $9,200,000 on property which was understood to have been held by the New Haven at a reserve price of not more than $6,000,000?

How was the additional valuation of more than $3,000,000 to have been accounted for?

The decision of the Supreme Court that the creation of the Park Square Real Estate Trust was illegal and that the trust has no valid title to the land in which stood the old Providence station, disclosed a plan on the part of the New Haven Railroad to put upon Boston a land speculation involving $9,200,000.

It was brought out in the hearings before the Supreme Court that the land was transferred by the railroad in consideration of $1 and 52,000 shares in the trust, par value $100 each. At this valuation the shares represented $5,200,000. By the terms of the trust, which was drawn by the New Haven road, the trustees were empowered to issue an additional 40,000 shares, representing $4,000,000.

Boston Would Pay $4,000,000.

Since 1904, when the property legally passed into the hands of the New Haven road, it had been on the market at a price understood to be about $6,000,000. The land has been a white elephant on the hands of the directors of the road, and this plan was apparently devised to let Boston pay into the coffers of the railroad $4,000,000 for an interest in property which had been held at a reserve price of $6,000,000 and in which the New Haven, by virtue of its 52,000 shares held absolute control.

In the opinion which declares the trust illegal the Supreme Court frankly characterized the scheme as a land speculation which the railroad had no right to promote. The decision, real estate experts declared to-day, simply lops off the $3,000,000 or more which the New Haven purposed arbitrarily to add to the value of the property and leaves it again on the hands of the road.

Chief Justice Knowlton's opinion states that the New Haven should sell the property outright at the best price it can get for it, and that it cannot, by any such subterfuge as the creation of a land trust, overstep the purposes for which the railroad was incorporated.

The Supreme Court estimates the value of the property at $5,000,000, and severely criticizes the New Haven company not only for its attempt to inflate the value, but also for its attempt to usurp powers which were never conferred on it and to engage in business which the Legislature has not authorized it to do and to which there may be grave objections on the ground of public policy.

MOTOR BOATS AS CONTEST PRIZE

By THE CONTEST EDITOR.

Motor-boating days have come. The first prize in the Special May Offer in connection with the AMERICAN'S $35,000 Prize Contest is especially appropriate to this time of out-door recreation. The first prize is a $500 Homer speed power boat.

This boat is listed at $500 and is worth every cent of that valuation. It is a twenty-foot runabout, with four-foot, two-inch beam. The specifications call for the best Oregon cedar planking, full fitting, including flagstaff, a four horse-power Waterman engine and all accessories required under government regulations. This runabout will develop a speed of ten knots an hour or more and is one of the classiest power boats afloat.

Forty-two prizes, aggregating $1,050 in value, are offered to the forty-two candidates polling the most votes BY SUBSCRIPTION between May 1 and May 31, up to 10 p. m., inclusive.

1	$500	Homer speed power boat	$500
1	$150	Diamond ring	150
10	$15	Phonographs	150
10	$10	German silver mesh bags, or
10	$10	Solid gold cuff links	100
10	$10	Gold pendants, or
10	$10	Gold watch fobs....	100
10	$5	Sets of fiction—10 bound books in each set	50
42			$1,050

This is one of the best special monthly offers made during the entire contest, and is the last special offer of any kind which will be made.

Don't wait till the last thing before sending in your subscriptions under this May Offer. Send them as fast as you get them. The Contest Editor will publish a new list of candidates' standing soon. You wish to get in every vote you can for that new list.

NEW YORK, May 17.—The condition of Mrs. Taft, wife of the President, improves steadily. The President's wife will return to Washington to-morrow.

SEAVEY FIGHTS BLOOD POISON

Friends of Sheriff Fred H. Seavey of Suffolk County, were alarmed to-day when they were informed that the sheriff had been laid up for the past five days, suffering from blood poisoning of the leg, at his quarters at the Charles street jail. This is the second attack that the sheriff has had during the past few months. During the first attack, which was caused by cutting a corn, he was laid up for several weeks, and it was feared that it would be fatal.

He pulled through all right, however, until last Saturday when the trouble started anew. His leg swelled and blood poisoning set in. The same specialist who treated him in the first attack, is treating him and believes he has the attack under control.

HOLLINS M'KIM DEAD.

BALTIMORE, May 17.—Hollins McKim the prominent retired banker, died to-day at the age of 79, after a long illness.

To Mothers:

You should give your children Father John's Medicine when they have a cold or are run down, because it is a pure and wholesome food medicine which will give them new strength to fight off the disease. Father John's Medicine is a safe medicine for children because it contains no alcohol nor dangerous drugs.

What One Mother says:

Mrs. G. Justus, of Jersey City, says Father John's Medicine always cures her seven children when they are run down in health or have a cold or cough. "We always recommend it to everybody." (Signed) Mr. and Mrs. G. Justus.

EASY TO GET AN AMERICAN FLAG

Kindly do not send stamps for flags.

The Flag Department of the AMERICAN at No. 275 Devonshire street asks applicants for flags who send for flags by mail not to enclose stamps.

Cash should not be sent through the mail, either. The AMERICAN is not responsible for money sent through the mail in any form other than postoffice money order or check.

Readers all know how to get a flag. The recipe is simple, thus:

"Seven coupons of consecutive dates and thirty-five cents."

Was there ever an easier and cheaper way to obtain a splendid specimen of the Stars and Stripes, a well-made, handsome flag, worth $1.50 if it is worth a cent.

There is no waiting in line at the Flag Department, no delay. The flags are all ready for you, nicely wrapped up. If ordered by mail they will come in stout, fibre-paper envelopes.

Applicants should understand clearly that all mail orders must be addressed to Flag Department, Boston American, P. O. Box 3047, Boston.

This flag which the AMERICAN gives under this offer is of solid woven bunting of highest grade, with colors absolutely fast. The stripes are sewed throughout with double rows of stitches and the corners are solidly fastened. A heavy canvas border with large brass grommets for ropes completes it.

For the convenience of AMERICAN readers who live in Providence, flags may be obtained from the special AMERICAN agent in Providence, Max Silverstein, at No. 23 Canal street. He will redeem flag coupons which are BROUGHT to his store, but will supply no mail orders. ALL mail orders must be sent to the Flag Department, P. O. Box 3047, Boston.

"BUSTER" BACK FROM ELYSIUM

"Buster" Gardner, whose real name is Edward S., the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Gardner of No. 43 Mindora street, Roxbury, was telling his little chums to-day of a wonderful adventure into Elysium. He was brought back from its green fields last night by the police, after his mother had made frantic search of the neighborhood. Here is the story the sturdy little chap told:

"I just wanted to see the green fields. The other boys told me that there were lots of trees and water over there a little ways. When mamma let me go out to play yesterday, while she was getting breakfast, I began to think about them.

"Pretty soon a man came along with a horse and I hollered, 'O, Mister, gimme a ride, will you? Out to where the grass is?' 'Sure, Bub,' he said, 'climb up alongside of me.' So I got up and we rode a long time. It was nice, and when we got out where the trees were he let me off. It was all nice grass and sand down by the water, so I played there for a little while. But there weren't any other boys and girls and I got sleepy and went to sleep.

"When I woke up there was a lady who gave me some milk and cookies at her house. She asked me all about mamma and papa and where I lived, and then a policeman came and took me with him. Everybody was nice to me, but I didn't want to go back then. It is all stones and houses where I live, and I wanted to play some more in the grass. Maybe I can go again sometime, but mamma says I can't go alone, and she'll be cross if I do. But I'm tired of just stones."

Buster's green fields and water were found in the Savin Hill district which is a long way from his home. His mother told the police that he was lost, and they telephoned to the Dorchester station, where they had a sleepy but happy boy that answered the description.

BLAME SPIRITS FOR BULL WILL

ALFRED, Me., May 17.—In the suit brought here to break the will of Mrs. Ole Bull, widow of the famous violinist, on the ground that she was influenced by Indian mystics, it was brought out to-day that Mrs. Bull went to India when her little granddaughter, of whom she had been very fond, was critically ill.

The granddaughter is the daughter of Mrs. Olea Bull Vaughan, of Cambridge, who has brought the suit to break the will. The property involved is about $428,000.

Lawyer Sherman L. Whipple, attorney for Mrs. Vaughn, declared that Mrs. Bull had come to believe that a woman could transmit power through a telephone to kill her and that she brought Indian psychics to this country to ward off the alleged evil influence.

Lawyer Joseph G. Thorp, executor of the will, a brother of Mrs. Bull and a beneficiary, resumed the witness stand to-day. He was examined by Mr. Whipple.

Spirit Talk With Husband.

"Did you know," asked Mr. Whipple, "that your sister said that she communicated with Ole Bull in the other world, and communicated with others who were deceased?"

"I did not," replied Thorp.

Q.—Do you know that Mrs. Bull claimed to be a medium, and that she had power to drive out evil influences? A.—No, sir.

Q.—How many times was your sister with Mr. Odan? A.—Two or three times a week.

Q.—Did you ever know your sister and Mr. Odan to go into the meditation room together? A.—No. My sister met Mr. Odan in Cambridge some nine years ago.

The witness said his sister had gone to India with an Indian Swami, but that he did not know that the Swami had come to this country after her.

Q.—Whom did your sister take an interest in mostly? A.—She took a great interest in Frances E. Willard and Lady Henry Somerset, the temperance workers.

Q.—When did Mrs. Bull go to India? A.—She went there in 1908. Before her departure Mrs. Bull was very fond of her daughter's daughter, Edwina. When my sister came back I talked to her about her trip to India when her granddaughter, Edwina, was ill.

Q.—Did you hear your sister say, "Swami Vevekananda is ill in India and called to me to go there?" A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you talk with your sister about her going away and did she give you any reason for it? A.—I talked with her, but she gave me no explanation for it. She never justified it. She said her daughter did not want her to go.

Q.—Did her daughter object because she went with the Swami? A.—No, not on that account, but because Mrs. Vaughn's little daughter was ill.

Q.—Why did your sister call herself "Sara" instead of "Sarah," as she was christened? A.—Mr. Bull gave her that name long before she went to India.

Feared Mrs. Shapleigh.

A letter written by Mrs. Bull while she was in India to Mrs. Abbie Shapleigh of West Lebanon, Me., for many years a member of Mrs. Bull's household, was introduced. It was Mrs. Shapleigh that Mrs. Bull feared, Mr. Whipple said in his address to the court, although Mrs. Shapleigh never had an evil thought toward Mrs. Bull.

Thorp gave as the names of persons with whom Mrs. Bull was intimate outside of her own family Miss Mary E. Noble, known as "Sister Nizegita"; Mrs. Marion Briggs, Miss McLeod, Miss Thursday, Miss O'Neil, Miss Richmond, Dr. Henderson and John Lund.

Mrs. Bull left her daughter, Mrs. Vaughn, only a yearly income of $3,500 and the right to dispose of $65,000 after her death. She left Swami Vivekanda $5,000, and Dr. Bose, an Indian whom she adopted in Calcutta, $20,000. The daughter claims that Mrs. Bull surrounded herself with persons who influenced her in the making of her will to such an extent that the daughter was kept from her dying bedside.

FOSS FOR STATE TAX ON INCOMES

Governor Foss to-day sent to the Legislature his long-expected message, suggesting changes in the taxation laws of the State. The Governor comes out in favor of:

First—A State tax on incomes from whatever source derived.

Second—A State tax on forest lands. This tax is to be graded.

The Governor asks the Legislature to pass resolves amending the State Constitution to put into effect these changes in the taxation laws.

The Governor declares that forest lands should be taxed along a graded plan based upon whether or not they return an income to their owners, and he lays down the principle that they should not be taxed so heavily as developed real estate. By this means, the Governor declares, the conservation of the natural resources of the State—forest lands, in particular—will be encouraged.

The forest land tax was recommended by the taxation committee, which went over the whole question of revising the laws two years ago. Professor Bullock of Harvard, now the Governor's taxation expert, was a member of that committee.

The State income tax recommendation caused no surprise on Beacon Hill, as it has been known that the Governor favored this form of income raising, whether the federal income tax amendment goes through or not.

To-day's message was the longest and in many ways the most important one Governor Foss has sent to the Legislature. It covers twelve typewritten pages.

FIGHT IN OPERA OVER LIPKOWSKA

PARIS, May 17.—There was a wild scene last night at the Opera Comique when Mlle. Lydia Lipkowska, some time of the Metropolitan and Boston Opera forces, sang Mimi in "La Boheme" for the first time since she took Paris by storm two years ago.

There were many Russians present, headed by the Russian ambassador, Isvolsky. There is a very strong feeling against Russian singers in Paris just now, the Musicians' Union having declared a strike against the Russian opera season.

During the first and second acts the orchestra took up the fight by trying their best to drown Mlle. Lipkowska. In the second act, when singing her duet with the tenor, she almost broke down.

The audience saw the unfair plot against the little prima donna and began to shout for her recall, on which the upper galleries took up the cry for the labor syndicate and yelled to keep her off.

When Mlle. Lipkowska entered for the third act the dispute between the upstairs and the boxes grew noisier and more acute, but finally she triumphed and the chivalric French audience called her back five times, men and women standing up and cheering.

NAVY MUST SEND COAL TO ALASKA

CORDOVA, Alaska, May 17.—With unmined millions of tons of first-class coal only fifteen miles away, legal red tape is causing the U. S. cruiser Buffalo to lie here with empty bunkers, practically helpless, for want of coal.

It is expected here that the government will send a collier from Puget Sound Navy Yard, about sixteen hundred miles, with coal. Efforts to secure a supply in Alaska waters proved unavailing.

The cruiser sailed from San Francisco to establish wireless telegraph stations in Alaska.

The Bering River coal fields, near here, cannot be touched until title to these fields, claimed by private individuals, is decided.

T. W. HIGGINSON WILL IS FILED

The will of Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson, who died May 9, was filed in the Probate Court at East Cambridge to-day. It is dated November 8, 1906, and names his brothers-in-law, Stephen Thacher of Cambridge and George Washington Thacher of Greenfield, as executors. There are no public bequests, and no valuation of the estate was given. Colonel Higginson's Summer home at Dublin, N. H., is left to his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Waldo Barney, wife of Dr. J. Gallinger Barney of Commonwealth avenue. The rest of the estate is devised to the widow, Mrs. Mary Thacher Higginson.

Burdens Lifted From Bent Backs

A bad back is a heavy handicap to those who work. Nine times out of ten it is due to sick kidneys. The only way to find relief is to cure the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills have given strong backs to thousands of men and women.

G. A. Craig, 51 Hancock St., Boston, Mass., says: "My body was constantly racked with pain and I was so nervous I could not sit still. I had a dragging pain in the small of my back, my feet and ankles swelled, I had dizzy spells and was annoyed by too frequent passages of the kidney secretions. Physicians did not seem to understand my case. Doan's Kidney Pills brought prompt relief and soon every symptom of my trouble disappeared. I have never had any cause for complaint since."

MY FINANCIAL SITUATION IS JUST THIS Last May I reorganized my business—AND BY CONDUCTING THE MOST TREMENDOUS MONEY-SAVING SHOE SALE EVER KNOWN IN BOSTON—I succeeded in raising $60,000 and bought out my partners at an awful sacrifice. Since then I have been handicapped for cash—I mean big amounts.

I MUST HAVE LARGE SUMS OF MONEY TO CONDUCT THE BUSINESS. I buy shoes by the Ten Thousand pairs. I pay spot cash in the majority of cases. This enables me to get the shoes for the people AT PRICES LOWER THAN ACTUAL COST TO MANUFACTURE. The time comes when, to realize a large sum like $40,000, I must throw all idea of even a small profit overboard and TAKE A BIG LOSS TO GET THE MONEY.

This is the situation that now stares me, Sheinwald, in the face. The time is here, I must now make the sacrifice. Remember, ordinarily you can't raise $40,000 in two weeks, neither can you sell $75,000 worth of shoes in such a short time.

I MUST NOW RAISE $40,000 CASH

LETTER AVERTS DOUBLE DEATH

The publication in the AMERICAN of a remarkable letter from a mother in which she told of a plan to drown herself and her son, and the immediate notification of the police of Putnam, Ct., and surrounding towns by the AMERICAN, have been responsible for saving the lives of Mrs. Mary Goddette of North Oxford, Mass., and her three year old child.

They are now in the care of relatives in that town although the woman made at least three attempts to accomplish the idea of suicide which possessed her.

On Saturday, May 13, the AMERICAN after notifying the police by telegraph and telephone, published the letter postmarked Killingly, Ct., which said in part:

> I want you to put in the Boston AMERICAN that I left my husband and I got discouraged and I threw myself and my little boy in the river. I love my husband but it was his mother that put the trouble in me and my husband—he is a good honest man and I did all I could for him but he want me to live with his mother and I lived four years with his folks and I had to go.

Once Happy at Home.

> I use to have good time with my husband but my mother (in) law didn't like to see us have good time, she said that I didn't have no besnes to go out with him. I am doing for the best because my poor little boy he is three years and I think if I want to work and make my child live and give good living but that he be to bad for my child when he be about 15 years old, see that he got a father and he wouldn't know him. He won't have no troubles and be a angel.

Investigation showed that the Mrs. Mary Goddette of North Oxford had arrived in Dayville, Ct., (Killingly Postoffice) and was visiting her sister at Elmville, which adjoins Dayville. She had brought a trunk and her three-year-old son. She appeared to be in a very excited condition and a quiet watch was kept over her.

Last Friday the woman, with the child in her arms, wandered to Alexander's Lake. Just as she reached the edge a neighbor who had been watching her asked her what she was doing. She replied that she was trying to get the boy to sleep so that she might drown herself and him. After some argument he induced her to return to the home of her sister where a close watch was put about her.

Eludes Guards Again.

In spite of the utmost vigilance, however, Mrs. Goddette succeeded in eluding her guards three different times, once making her way out with her son in her arms through a window. She was intercepted on the bank of a small ice pond and again told of her plan to kill herself and the boy. She complained that she had been ill-treated at her home and insisted that she would kill herself at the first opportunity.

Selectman Charles E. Ayer of Dayville finally decided that the town could not be put to the inconvenience of maintaining a constant guard over the woman and she was put into an automobile with her boy and taken by Deputy Sheriff Michael Grimshaw to relatives in North Oxford where she is to-day under strict surveillance. Relatives of Mrs. Goddette think that she has become demented.

ALARMING PREVALENCE OF ECZEMA

Finds Victims Among Every Race, Age and Condition.

Of all the diseases of the skin and scalp which torture and disfigure mankind, three-fourths are eczematous. Millions are born with eczema, and it is the only thing other millions have left when they die. Neglect in infancy and childhood, irritating conditions affecting the skin, ignorance of its real nature, improper remedies and many other causes that might be mentioned have created an eczema which, with varying severity, has afflicted countless numbers during their entire lives. Eczema is a skin disease. It is not regarded as hereditary, nor contagious, and is impartially distributed among the rich and poor, the high and low. The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, causing loss of sleep, is usually the most distressing symptom and is caused by the bursting of little vesicles filled with an acrid fluid which burns as with fire the denuded skin. New vesicles form, fill and burst, scales form upon scales, and crusts upon crusts until disfigurement is added to torture.

One of the most successful treatments for eczema, whether applied to the youngest infant or the oldest person, is hot baths with Cuticura soap and gentle anointings of Cuticura ointment. For more than a generation, these pure, sweet and gentle emollients have proved the most efficient agents in the speedy and permanent relief of all forms of eczemas, rashes, itchings and irritations of the skin and scalp. Although Cuticura soap and ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, in order that those who have suffered long and hopelessly and who have lost faith in everything may make trial of them without charge, a liberal sample of each will be mailed free to any address, together with a 32-page pamphlet, giving a description and treatment of the various forms of eczema, as well as other affections of the skin, scalp, hair and hands—send to "Cuticura," Dept. E, Boston.

FIND BLAKEMORE 70 MILES AT SEA

for last night about 9 o'clock the man was able to sit up in the bunk, and I began to question him about who he was and where he had come from. He did not appear to understand. He did say he was 'bound to New York.' I asked him how he ever expected to get there in that boat, and he made no reply. He simply mumbled, 'My wife, my wife.' Again and again he mumbled 'New York' and 'My wife.'

On Way to Davy Jones.

"I had no idea where he came from or that he was the son of a wealthy broker. It made no difference to me who he was. He was a poor being who had come within a length of going to Davy Jones's locker in the deep and I was going to give him the very best care there was on my vessel to get him back to life. There was not a sign of food or water to drink in his dory and I knew he must have become insensible from exposure and hunger. He slept well during the night and when the sun came up he asked to come on deck. I got his breakfast spread for him on deck and brought him up wrapped in heavy blankets. He looked forward and saw the land and began to cry. He sobbed as if his heart would break.

"He just looked at the land and cried and cried. I did not disturb or bother him. It seemed to do him good to cry, for he was much more cheerful after that. He ate a big breakfast. When we got into T Wharf he seemed to know just where he was, for he said, 'I guess I will walk up to my father's office on Milk street.' Poor fellow, he was so weak that he could hardly lift one foot in front of the other. He did not have any papers describing who he was, and I did not get enough from him to give me any idea who he was, so when we docked I took him up to Police Station 1 on Hanover street and turned him over to the officers there. I hope he gets along all right, for he seemed a well-kept and decent sort of a chap.

Hard Night for a Dory.

"As near as I figure it he had traveled seventy miles since he sailed out of Ipswich river. I do not see how he kept his dory afloat on Monday night. It was as nasty a night at sea as we had during the entire trip. We had water in our scuppers a good part of the night and it was no night for a dory, I can tell you. I don't believe anyone but a crazy man could have lived through such a night. The sea calmed yesterday, the wind went down and the conditions were not bad when we came across him in his dory. The combers kept sending a little water into the half-filled dory and it could not have floated over five or six hours more. His boat was a wreck.

"One of his oars was gone and the other remained in the boat broken in half. This undoubtedly saved his life for when he lost consciousness his head rested on the oar and kept it above the water that flooded into his boat. His tiller was gone. When he was brought aboard I noticed that the ends of his fingers were all black from clotted blood. This showed that he had hung on to something until the last ounce of strength in his body had gone."

Captain Cooney has been a T Wharf skipper for 40 years. He is owner of the trim fishing schooner Mary E. Cooney which has a record of being one of the best trawlers out of T Wharf. The boat hails from Rockport which is Captain Cooney's home.

Glad to Find Son.

To a reporter of the the Boston AMERICAN Mr. Blakemore, father of the young man said:

"I can't tell you how glad I am to find that my boy is safe. We had given up all hope of ever seeing him again. His present condition is due to a fall on an icy pavement about a year and a half ago which resulted in concussion of the brain. He has been ill ever since.

"Last Thursday we moved to our Summer home on Choate Island, Essex. I thought the change would do him good. On Sunday we were practically settled. The boy appeared all right, except that he was tired and seemed highly nervous, which we thought was due to the excitement attending the moving.

"On Sunday night he went to bed as usual. He appeared perfectly normal. But when we arose Monday morning we found that he had disappeared. He had gotten up, as we found out later, at 2 o'clock and had taken his dory and sailed out to sea. That was the last we saw of him until this morning.

"When he was found he was believed to be dead. When the members of the fishing crew picked him up they were obliged to lift him out of the dory. He was perfectly helpless. His condition was pitiable. Even now he is weak and exhausted and his clothes are still wet. His face is emaciated.

"I am sending for my wife because she can care for him better than I. She has been more in contact with him. My business affairs have kept me away from home a good deal."

15 FAMILIES IN QUARANTINE

Fifteen families are quarantined on Centre road, Quincy, and the local Board of Health is conducting an investigation to find out if any of them are affected with smallpox. Yesterday the year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiggins of Feather road died of the disease and Dr. F. Raymond Burke, secretary of the Quincy Board of Health, summoned Dr. Washburn of the State Board of Health, to conduct an investigation. They ordered the quarantine and had everybody vaccinated.

Up to two weeks ago the Wiggins family lived in Dorchester and the baby was treated by a Dorchester doctor for a minor disease, and when the family moved to Quincy the doctor telephoned to Dr. Burke to watch the case for fear that it might develop into spinal meningitis. Dr. Burke called on the family before consulting the State Board of Health and found that the child had been treated by a Hough's Neck doctor. Later the child died and the house was quarantined. The father and mother of the child are deaf mutes.

Some of those who came under the quarantine rule attended a dance given by a social club in a hall at Hough's Neck last night, and as some of them showed symptoms of the disease the Quincy Board of Health is endeavoring to find out in what sections of the city those who attended the dance live so that they may be vaccinated and kept under surveillance.

DIAZ TO RESIGN OFFICE MAY 25

MEXICO CITY, May 17.—President Diaz will retire from office on May 25 or shortly afterward. Francisco de la Barra, Minister of Foreign Affairs, will succeed him. General Bernado Reyes will become Minister of War. Congress will immediately issue writs for new elections. Three insurrecto leaders will enter the Cabinet.

The above was outlined to-day by a prominent government official as the official peace program of the Mexican government. He stated that President Diaz has already written his resignation and that his complete retirement would be delayed only until he was certain that other revolutionary armies would accept the peace terms terms made with General Madero and thus prevent anarchy in the republic.

Madero is expected to be the only candidate for the Presidency in the new elections. As soon as General Reyes arrives from Europe announcement of the resignation of President Diaz, Vice-President Corral and several State Governors will be published in the official gazette.

Insurrectos in Cabinet.

Installation of the provisional government headed by De la Barra will follow. The provisional ministry arranged in the negotiations thus far is as follows:

Interior—Dr. Vasquez Gomez, insurrecto.
Communications—Dr. Manuel Bonilla, editor at Mazatlan, and friend of Diaz.
Justice—Pino Suarez, insurrecto.
War—General—Bernado Reyes, federal, but approved by insurrectos.
Commerce and Industry—Senor Marcoquin, federal and present incumbent.
Finance—Jose Yves Limantour, federal and present incumbent.
Education—Vera Estanol, federal and present incumbent.

The slate leaves the ministry of foreign affairs undecided, but this will be given to an insurrecto.

With formal proclamation of an armistice which will end hostilities in Mexico expected within a few hours, Provisional President Madero, in anticipation of early peace, has begun the work of reconstruction on railway lines through the State of Chihuahua.

However, Madero does not hesitate to say that he will use the repaired railway lines to transport his troops and their equipment south for an attack on the city of Chihuahua if negotiations are unexpectedly broken off. Negotiations, however, had reached such a stage that the likelihood of their being severed was not seriously considered.

Unlike the recent armistice the next proclamation ending hostilities will not be confined to a small zone, but will be nation wide. The insurrectos continue to operate the customs house in Juarez. They are constantly receiving large amounts of money from a mysterious source and are paying for the supplies which are bought in this city as the purchases are made.

Madero Property Burned.

Madero has issued formal notice to all companies doing business in Mexico that the customs house at Juarez is in responsible hands and that they should not hesitate to make shipments as usual.

The Mexican Northwestern railroad is now open as far as Pearson for both freight and passenger traffic. The insurrectos have informed the company that the tracks will not be molested unless the peace negotiations fail. Americans in the mining districts of Chihuahua who have remained during the revolution are jubilant over the outlook for early peace. Some of the mines owned by Americans have already been reopened. Among these are the Candelaria and Leon mines in Southern Chihuahua. Through the lack of means for direct communication the insurrectos operating in the interior of the State of Sonora are ignorant of the progress of the peace plans and the revolution is still in full swing there. Many of the federals have withdrawn, leaving the State almost wholly in the hands of the rebels.

UNCLE SAM ASKS FOR $50,000,000

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Seventy seven mail bags filled with invitations to the public to bid for Uncle Sam's new bonds left Washington this morning. Every one of the 23,000 national banks, State banks and trust companies of which the treasury has record, will receive one of the official circulars and bidding slips. The man who wants to lend $100, $500, $1,000 or more to the government at 3 per cent. interest can learn all the particulars by dropping around to see his banker.

To make the new $50,000,000 loan, which was announced last night, as popular as possible, the treasury will accept ordinary checks payable through clearing house cities and postal orders in payment. The small bidders will receive first attention, which will make it possible for the individual investor to deal directly with the government instead of with a bond dealer.

It probably will be six weks before the successful bidders are announced. The price they will pay for the new securities is a conjecture, but the estimates put it somewhere between par and 103.

JESSE POMEROY'S LETTERS TO HIS MOTHER

The most remarkable letters ever printed in a newspaper are the letters written by Jesse Pomeroy from his prison cell to his mother. These letters will be printed exclusively in Sunday's AMERICAN.

SIMPSON TELLS DEATH STORY

"I was only fooling."

That was the explanation given to-day by Harry B. W. Simpson in his trial on the charge of murdering Mrs. Nellie L. Horn at their home, No. 348 Shawmut avenue, on March 5, of last year, of how he hurt her, if he did so. The trial is before Judge Stevens and a jury in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court. It is charged that Simpson beat the woman with his fist and hit her with a hard instrument.

Simpson is about thirty-five. He was very pale and nervous as he took the witness stand and told his story of the woman's death.

"I got home that night about 6 o'clock," he testified. "Nellie was on a lounge with our baby. I said, 'Hello, dear,' and she spoke pleasantly to me.

Gave Her His Wages.

"'Come, Harry,' she said, 'and feel baby's new tooth.' I went over to the sofa and put my finger in the baby's mouth and felt the tooth. Then I gave her $7.50, my wages for the week.

"I then took off my coat and Nellie and I began to fool. We were not angry. In tussling about I hit her with the back of my hand. She got the baby's clothing out of a closet and came back to the sofa. Then her head fell back against the wall. She looked peculiar and breathed heavily. I thought she was fooling and did not imagine she was hurt.

"I picked up the baby and then I saw Nellie was really ill. I ran down stairs and told Mrs. Schmidt there was something wrong with my wife. She and another woman came up. The other woman said she was a nurse.

Thought Woman Fainted.

"'She's only fainted,' said Mrs. Schmidt,' get me some water.'

"We got a doctor, but by the time he got there Nellie was dead. I went and got her mother. I did not hit her with my clenched fist and I did not hit her with a hard weapon, as it is charged. I was only in the room about fifteen minutes when she died."

Palmer C. Thompson, a lodger in the same house, testified for the prosecution, that he heard some one in the room that evening say, "I'll kill you." He didn't know whether it was a man's or woman's voice. Later on he heard a woman cry, "Oh, don't—don't," he said.

Pauline Chase and Grahame-White

PAULINE CHASE STOPS LOVE FLIGHT WITH CLAUDE GRAHAME-WHITE, THE AVIATOR.

Pauline Chase, actress, isn't listening any more to the siren call of Claude Grahame-White, aviator, as he sings for her to come among the clouds:

"Come, my Pauline, in my flying machine,
Up she goes, up she goes."

No, indeed. Miss Chase isn't going up in the air a bit for Claude Grahame-White or any other birdman. At the same time Miss Chase does not wish to be considered flighty just because she has broken off her engagement to Mr. White. She has taken one or more aerial excursions with him in this country, and Cupid was a passenger in their aeroplane. Then the air was calm and still, and the clouds tinged with the glowing hues of aerial romance.

But when Miss Chase returned to London and the stage she got back to earth again, and love in the skies didn't seem half so alluring. Thoughts of housekeeping with a husband who was likely to dash off skyward at any time or literally drop into his meals at unexpected moments were too much. So from London comes the news that the Chase-White romance aeroplane is no longer traversing the air lanes. Miss Chase explains it thus:

"It is not that I am engaged to anyone else, but I have come to realize that I cannot give up the stage for him. There isn't the least unpleasantness about it. We just concluded that we should not get on well in married life. He is absorbed in flying and I care for the theatre too much to give it up."

DEAN WORCESTER NOW UNDER FIRE

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A petition to Congress signed by publishers, clergymen, professors, scientists and others, requesting a special inquiry into the manner in which Dean C. Worcester has discharged his duties as commissioner of the Philippine Islands, has been submitted to the House by Representative Slayden of Texas.

The petition is in the form of a resolution, and charges that Commissioner Worcester "has become notoriously unpopular among the natives, the final and culminating evidence of which was given by a resolution unanimously passed by the General Assembly of the Philippine Islands as the closing act of its last session."

BANGOR TREASURE ESCAPED THE FIRE

BANGOR, Me., May 17.—The vault of the Bangor Savings Bank, which figured in the conflagration of April 30, and containing cash and securities to the value of between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000, has been opened by Boston safe experts, and its contents found in as good condition as the day they were placed in it. The treasure is now stored in two of the strongest vaults in the city.

GREAT EUROPEAN BUSINESS PARTY

The Boston reservations for the Chamber of Commerce foreign tour closed to-day and Secretary McKibben announced that there is every reason to believe the party will be larger than was anticipated for the sailing on June 12. He stated that at this time it is impossible to give out a list of the names of the individuals and representatives of firms who will accompany the party, but that many outside reservations have been made.

The Chicago Association of Commerce wires that it will have three individuals in the party, Seattle says two, Denver three, Detroit two, Louisville one, Buffalo three, Bridgeport one, Lowell one, New York one, National Municipal League one, Progressive Republican League one, American Civic Association one, Philadelphia Board of Survey one, Dean of Colorado College one, Boston Elevated one, Boston Consolidated Gas Company one, United Shoe Machinery Company one. About six newspaper correspondents will go with the party. Governors of several States have signified their intention of appointing representatives, and other large cities will follow suit it is expected before the time of departure.

There have been two changes in the original itinerary. The Permanent Committee of the International Congress of Chamber of Commerce meets in Paris July 3 and 4. At the same time representatives of important business concerns in Southern Europe have decided to meet the American delegation on those days. The party goes from London to Paris on July 1, and after the two days visit departs for Brussels. Two days less than was first planned thus will be spent in Paris and this time will be devoted to Switzerland.

The London office of the cable company has placed a special man in charge of the excursionists' messages and has determined upon a code word. It is "Bochamcom" the first syllables of the words Boston Chamber of Commerce. Messages sent to any member of the party with this code will be transmitted to the addressee wherever the party may be without further advice.

NO SUCCESSOR TO O'MEARA YET NAMED

Governor Foss announced to-day that he would not send in his nomination for Police Commissioner of Boston at to-day's meeting of the Executive Council, and he did not do so. It is believed that he will send in the nomination at next Wednesday's meeting. He said recently that he would make his decision about ten days before Commissioner O'Meara's term expires on June 5.

Governor Foss says he has not fully made up his mind in the matter, but the betting on Beacon Hill to-day was 400 to 1 that he has decided to reappoint Mr. O'Meara.

MANY INVOLVED IN OHIO GRAFT SCANDAL

COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—That from fifty to sixty persons will be indicted in the legislative graft scandal was the declaration made to-day by Detective William J. Burns, who is in this city to appear before the Grand Jury as a witness. Detective Burns and Prosecuting Attorney Edward L. Turner have held several conferences.

TAFT TO ATTEND BIG BIBLE SCHOOL RALLY

WASHINGTON, May 17.—President Taft to-day accepted an invitation to attend a Sunday school rally of 20,000 children in Brooklyn on June 8. On the same night the President will attend the banquet of the Cotton Crushers' Association in New York city.

MRS. POMEROY'S PLEA FOR SON

Mrs. Ruth A. Pomeroy of No. 47 Pearl street, North Weymouth, will meet Governor Foss in his office to-morrow and talk with him in behalf of her son, Jesse Pomeroy, who is serving a life sentence in solitary confinement in the Charlestown State Prison.

Mrs. Pomeroy will make a mother's plea for the pardon of her son and if she does not receive encouragement along this line she will ask for more prison privileges for him.

"There have been times," said Mrs. Pomeroy, "when I almost gave up. Right at the start when Jesse was first sentenced there was a while that I thought my mind was giving away. I do not believe it can be any worse to go clean mad than to go through what I have been through. But Jesse has such wonderful courage, he never gives up his cheerfulness and hopefulness, and so my visits to him are as much help to me as they are to him. I always come away from seeing him with a new idea of something to do. And just because I must I try to be hopeful. But some of the Governors have been so stern that they would not even see me; they would just send word through their secretaries that it would be useless for me to see them, and then there was nothing to do but sit and wait for another Governor to be elected. It has taken lots of patience.

"And sometimes I would think it would be easier for me to give up and make up my mind there was no hope than to keep on starting new hopes every time that I was disappointed on the thing I had been working for. Lately, especially I have felt almost like giving up trying. I am getting so old and feeble that I cannot do things the way I used to, and I haven't confidence in myself. And then Governor Guild was so stern that there was no use hoping for anything while he was Governor. But when I began to read about the interest Governor Foss is taking in the prisoners this Spring I just couldn't help getting encouraged all over again, and to-day I have more hope than I have had for years. If only I can say the right thing when I see the Governor. Of course the thing Jesse has been most interested in lately has been about getting a writ of error, and he has worked out all the technical details and can quote the number of the page of all sorts of law books that affect his case. But I am afraid to try to tell the Governor about that, because I can't keep all the names straight, and I know I would get mixed up. I am just going to tell him a mother's story. I don't want to take too much of his time and tire him out, but if I could only tell him how things are, if he could only just understand how things really were right from the beginning, then he could not help feeling just as I do, that something must be done for Jesse."

HORROR!

Peanut Factory Burns, Terrible Scenes Pictured by One Who Has Seen Them—Gloom at the Wild West Show.

SUFFOLK, Va., May 16.—The largest peanut factory in the world, owned by Bain & Company, burned today.—Yesterday's News Item.

This was all the press dispatches said about it. Funny, the way they make up newspapers sometimes. Columns about what seven or eight fellows down to Washington had to say about oil, and such, and two lines and a half on a national calamity at the very opening of the circus, seashore and Summer girl seasons.

Down at the "Buffalo Bill" show, Mr. "Peanut" Green, the privilege man, was surrounded by little glooms.

"That's the way it goes," Mr. Green said, "when it ain't one thing it's another, or something else. In the olden days, if it wasn't rival shows, it would be industrial depressions. You'd play the Northwest when the wheat crop had just failed, or Texas when the boll weevil was fat. Here in New England there would be an epidemic of measles. Blame the luck!

"In one way—but don't tell this to Major Burke, who says small boys and peanuts have got nothing to do with the show business—in one way this calamity at Suffolk is about like an epidemic of measles, only its worse. It will kill off the interest of the small boy in Summer spectacles."

"But what I wanted to inquire about was the word 'factory' in connection with peanuts," said the reporter.

"What about it?" asked Mr. Green, carelessly wiping the inner band of his big slouch hat.

"Are there peanut factories?"

"Are there? What does the dispatch say?"

"Says 'peanut factory.'"

"Well?"

"Sounds kind o' strange!"

"Strange, nothing!" said Mr. Green.

"And let me tell you," he went on, "there isn't a more soul-distressing sight imaginable than the burning of a peanut factory. I saw the old Goober Brothers' place burned, in Richmond, back in '77, and sometimes in the night I can still hear the agonizing shrieks of those poor nuts, the flames surrounding them on all sides and escape cut off because the ladders reached only to the second floor. Peanut factories! I should say there were! Just like pickle factories."

Major Burke, the big man of the "Bill" show, positively refused to be interviewed, aye, yes or no, about a shell game.

CHANLER IN NEW CAVALIERI FUSS

NEW YORK, May 17.—Robert W. Chanler, packing paint brush and palette, has left New York for the quiet of Lenox, Mass., in the greatest quandary that has troubled him since the inception of his romance with Lina Cavalieri.

"Sheriff Bob" is an artist of ability and he still thinks the opera singer who crowned him with brief happiness the most beautiful woman in the world. He has under way a painting of "The Perfect Woman," and he wants the diva to pose for him. He has asked her to come back to America and let him paint her into his canvas.

The beautiful head of the diva, however, holds other things besides romance, and one of these is the appreciation of the power of money. Their ante-nuptial agreement gave her everything he possessed, but when they parted his relatives asked her to compromise on $75,000, signing a release of all her claims and obtaining from the French courts a legal separation.

Cavalieri insists that the $75,000 be paid into her hands before she takes any step toward signing the release. As to the proposition that she pose for him, she will not consider it until the money is produced.

BOY WITH COIN HELD FOR BREAK

If fifteen-year-old Edward Kearns of No. [illegible] Essex street, Charlestown, had not become literally overburdened with money he would not have been arraigned to-day in the Juvenile Court as a delinquent. Edward had a moment of abstraction just about dawn, after he had broken in, with a hammer, the door of the fruit store of Louis Mandello at No. 141 Leverett street, West End. In that moment, the police say, he abstracted $20 in nickels and dimes from the cash register.

Some time later young McKenna walked down Hanover street with a hammer in one hand and a canvas bag in the other. The bag looked very heavy to Patrolman McDonald of Station 1 and when the boy came out of a restaurant where he had exchanged $5 in small coin out of the bag for a bill, McDonald engaged him in a conversation that was not entirely satisfactory.

Consequently, in McDonald's care, young Kearns went to the Hanover street police station.

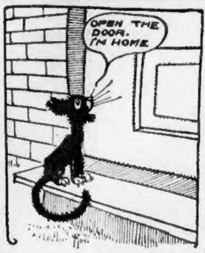
THIS CAT CAME BACK, BUT WAS A LONG TIME AWAY



OPEN THE DOOR. I'M HOME

MIDDLEBORO, May 17.—An interesting item of local news is the following:

"Mrs. Tabitha Sanford has returned to her home on Wareham street, after an absence of thirteen months."

The feature of unusual interest to this item is that Mrs. Tabitha is a cat.

Thirteen months ago Charles Sanford's family Tabby cat disappeared for no apparent reason. The Sanfords searched in vain, mourned for a few weeks, then gave the cat up as dead.

One day this week Tabby came walking along Wareham street. She paused at the Sanford gate, looked up inquiringly and walked around to the back door where Mrs. Sanford gave her a warm welcome. Tabby ate heartily, licked her fur clean and settled to a nap behind the kitchen stove as though she had simply been out to take a peep at the sky.

There's no explanation of Tabby's comings and goings. "The cat came back," that's all.

MRS. DODGE NOW PRISON HOUSEKEEPER

WINDSOR, Vt., May 17.—Mrs. Florence M. Dodge of Lunenburg, sentenced to from four to six years in the State prison for the murder of William Heath, has been installed as a housekeeper at the prison.

Mrs. Dodge was brought from Guildhall by Sheriff Richard Beattie, and was accompanied by one of her attorneys. After the customary questions had been asked and answered she was given into the custody of Superintendent Lovell and by him turned over to Miss Sarah J. Durkee, the matron.

Mrs. Dodge will not be obliged to wear prison garb.

SERIOUSLY HURT BY FALL DOWN STAIRS

Daniel Coughlin, fifty-four, a seaman, was seriously injured early to-day when he fell down a flight of stairs in the lodging house at No. 238 Commercial street, North End. He was taken to the Relief Hospital, where it was found he had sustained three fractured ribs on the right side and a deep gash in his forehead. Coughlin, who was ascending the stairs, stumbled as he neared the top and fell to the bottom of the flight, where he was found by other lodgers in the house.

PLAN DETAILS OF TRUCK RUN

By J. C. KERRISON.

The Contest Committee of the Boston Motor Truck Association held a meeting yesterday afternoon and considered in detail the rules and regulations of the three days' demonstration to be held the latter part of next month.

There were many matters which received the consideration of the committee, but just what was done will not be announced until later.

The members of the committee comprise A. B. Henley, L. B. Butler, Mr. McKone, J. S. Snow and A. P. Underhill, who are thoroughly familiar with all matters relating to motor trucks.

The speed of the several classes for the demonstration was one of the things which took considerable of the committee's time. It seems that the rules of the A. A. A., governing motor truck contests, calls for four miles an hour for three-ton trucks. This seems hardly fair, as in the contest held by the AMERICAN in October last, even the five-ton trucks, the speed of which was regulated to eight miles an hour, traveled, at their own volition it is true, at twelve miles an hour.

To say that a three-ton truck shall not travel any faster than four miles an hour is manifestly unfair to the motor truck, as four miles an hour would show but little, if any, advantage in a three-ton truck over a horse-drawn vehicle.

A five-ton truck loaded to its full capacity travels at eight miles an hour every day of the year in this vicinity.

The committee, however, is to take everything into consideration and will shortly make known the rules governing the speed as well as other things connected with the run.

Manager F. A. Charles, of the Interstate Company, says he is seriously considering the erection of a special building for his concern. When asked what site he had in mind, he said, "I don't know whether it will be the northeast corner of the Common, or the centre of the Public Garden."

Travelers on the Shasta Limited of the Southern Pacific from San Francisco to Los Angeles on May 9 had a moving picture show in the diner. The lights were put out and curtains were drawn. While the train was moving along at high speed the films carried by the E-M-F troupe, showing the manufacturing processes for E-M-F and Flanders cars, were run off. These were shown in this city some weeks ago. A great many tourists on the train saw the pictures and were much interested in them.

Frank A. Crockett, who for a great many years has been identified with the Reed-Underhill Company in this city, has accepted a responsible position with Manager Kenneth M. Blake of the Locomobile branch.

Mr. Crockett assumed his new duties on Monday and yesterday celebrated his change by selling a Locomobile six-cylinder. Mr. Crockett is about as well known in the local industry as is any one other man, and that he will make good in his new position is a foregone conclusion.

CITY'S SURPLUS OVER MILLION

Figures of Boston's actual and estimated incomes made public by City Auditor Mitchell in his annual report, show that the actual income, including taxes, was $28,681,825.68, while the estimated issue, including taxes, was $27,195,019.85. A surplus of $1,486,805.83 remained in the city treasury at the close of the fiscal year, January 31.

The report shows that the city's gross receipts amounted to $43,792,436.29, while the gross payments were $41,354,038.56. Of the receipts $242,138.05 was on account of the country of Suffolk, while the remainder was on account of the city. Of the payments made $1,537,976.47 was charged up to the county, while the city spent $32,750,942.76, including payments for the State tax and license revenue.

SCHOOL CADETS IN GUN CONTEST

One of the most important shoots of the year for high school cadets is being held at the "Federal Range," No. 117 Federal street, where the Deering High School team of Portland, Me., is competing with the English High School team of Boston for the championship of New England. The result of this contest will have an important bearing on the national cadet championship, the Deerings being tied for that honor. The tourney is being held under the auspices of the National Rifle Academy, and the schoolboy marksmanship is one of the big features of the shoot. To-day the members of the two teams of cadets in the championship are qualifying for position.

MANY DROWNED BY CLOUDBURST

VIENNA, May 17.—A cloudburst to-day overwhelmed the town of Boryslaw, a petroleum centre of Galicia, causing vast damage and sweeping away many houses and shops. Dispatches received here say that many of its 11,000 inhabitants were drowned when their houses were flooded, the majority of the victims being women and children.

HAWAII ASKS STATEHOOD.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A petition for the admission of Hawaii as a State has been received by the Senate from the Hawaiian Legislature and referred to the Committee on Territories.' The Senate passed a bill providing for the erection of a barracks for a cavalry post in Hawaii.

GIRL RESCUES SCORE IN FIRE

LAWRENCE, May 17.—Sophie Peno, aged nineteen, saved the lives of a score of lodgers and prevented a fire from getting headway that might wipe out thousands of dollars' worth of property, early to-day. The blaze broke out in a lodging house run by Mrs. Addie Gettner, above Peavey's new restaurant and next door to the Essex hotel. Flames were pouring from the unoccupied room adjoining that of Miss Peno when she was awakened by the smell of smoke. Wetting a towel, she tied it about her head, and rushed down the corridor past the room where the fire started, shouting a warning to the other lodgers in the house.

When she felt sure that all were wakened, she ran down the stairs to the street.

CARNEGIE THESIS UPON EDUCATION

NEW HAVEN, Ct., May 17.—The idea that a man's education ends when he leaves school is declared to be a fallacy by Andrew Carnegie in an article written for the Yale News on "A College Education and Sports." Education in the higher sense, he says, only begins when a man leaves school, college or university. Except for the chosen few who can spend time in study without affecting their pecuniary conditions he believes the study of dead languages is more or less a waste of time. Any young man who must make his way in the world chooses wisely, he says, when he chooses to make an early start. He believes that three or four years at this time of life would be unwisely spent in trying to obtain all that a university gives its graduates. Speaking of sport Mr. Carnegie says that the true test of genuine sport is that the more we play with each other the closer and warmer ties of friendship becomes. Athletics should be shared by all and participated in for the love of it not solely to win victories.

Restores Natural Color to Gray Hair.

Not a Stain or Dye.

That growing old and gray is unwelcome to most of us is shown by the almost unbelievable quantity of hair dyes and stains that are sold each year in the United States. Aside from the danger that attends the use of these preparations, it is well known that even the best of them cannot give permanent results, and that they color the hair unevenly and in patches, making the user ridiculous to any close observer.

Printed below is the prescription or formula for a preparation that is not a stain or dye and contains no coloring matter, but which rapidly restores natural color to gray, streaked or faded hair in a manner which is truly remarkable, solely by its action in reviving and stimulating the color glands in the hair roots, supplying them with the natural food and oil nourishment which they require.

The ingredients are all simple, standard and inexpensive pharmaceutical products which you can buy at any drug store. The druggist will mix them for you or you can do it at home. Allow to stand one-half hour before using. Here is the prescription:

Bay Rum .... 6 oz.
Lavona de Composee .... 2 oz.
Menthol Crystals .... ½ dr.

Apply night and morning, rubbing briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium stiff brush. This prescription is perfectly harmless and is recommended not only for the purpose named, but as a truly wonderful hair grower.

POLICEMAN TO TAKE A BRIDE

Miss Josephine Murphy of No. 10 Cedar street, Charlestown, is to be married to Timothy J. Kelley of the Boston police force in St. Mary's Church, Charlestown, at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning. Father James A. Phelan will perform the ceremony. There will be a reception at the bride's home from 10 until 2, and the young couple will take the 3 o'clock train for New York. They will also visit Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Washington and Palm Beach on their two weeks' honeymoon.

Officer Kelley is the youngest of five brothers to be appointed to the Boston police force, and has been on duty at Station 2 for the last two years. He lives with his parents at No. 113 Warren street, Roxbury.

Miss Murphy is the only daughter of Bartholomew J. Murphy, a well-known resident of Charlestown. Her two elder brothers, John and James, are married and live in Charlestown. Miss Murphy will continue to live in her parents' home on her return from her wedding trip. She is a graduate of Notre Dame Academy of the class of 1904.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY AT "WORLD"

Young People's Society Day was celebrated at the World in Boston to-day. The opening exercises held in the Midway were directed wholly to the Young People's Societies of all the churches. The address of welcome was delivered by the president, the Rev. Dr. Samuel B. Capen, and the response was made by the Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder and president of the Young People's Christian Endeavor Societies.

The Rev. Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell of Labrador spoke from the platform in the Pageant Hall on work in Labrador. He explained the work that is being done among the Northern Indians and Esquimaux and of the hardships borne by the missionaries there.

Hon. Homer B. Hulbert, former chief advisor to the Emperor of Korea, speaks on work done in that country now under the rule of Japan in the evening, and their is also in the evening the American Baptist Home Mission Society dinner. The speakers at this dinner are the Rev. J. E. Norcross, district superintendent of the New England branch of the society, and Rev. J. O. Gould, superintendent of the Western branch, from Texas and the Southwestern States.

During the rest of the day the regular program of the exposition will be followed out.

FORM SUFFRAGE CLUB IN WARD 11

Mrs. James Lee Laidlaw of New York, chairman of the Manhattan Woman Suffrage party, was chief speaker in the votes-for women meeting called this afternoon at the Hotel Tuileries. The purpose of the meeting is to organize the women of Ward 11.

Mrs. Stanley McCormick heads the movement, and others who take part in the meeting are Mrs. Charles G. Ames, Mrs. Charles N. Cabot, Mrs. Winston Churchill, Mrs. Ralph Adams Cram, Mrs. R. M. Crosby, Mrs. Christopher R. Eliot, Mrs. Glendower Evans, Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Jr., Dr. Mary F. Hobart, Mrs. Edwin D. Mead, Dr. Eliza Taylor Ransom and Mrs. Fiske Warren.

Jamaica Plain wards have also organized within the month, while the campaign begun a year ago by the Boston Equal Suffrage Association in co-operation with the State organization for woman suffrage has crystalized in a thorough organization of Ward 8—the first to be canvassed—Wards 1 and 2 in East Boston, Wards 3, 4 and 5 in Charlestown, and Wards 6 and 7, while the work is progressing in Wards 9, 10 and 12. Mrs. Patrick Shea is chairman of Ward 7, Miss Margaret Foley of Ward 12. Lewis J. Johnson of Harvard presided at the meeting of Ward 23, and Miss Beatrice Schonfeld is making headway in the Newtons.

CONWAY WILL PRESENT HEARST

ALBANY, N. Y., May 17.—Lieutenant Governor Conway is to preside at the executive gathering which William Randolph Hearst has been invited to address to-night.

Senator Duhammel, who, with his upper house assistants has been arranging for the meeting, formally invited the Lieutenant Governor to present Mr. Hearst. Mr. Conway replied that he would do so with great pleasure.

The exercises are to begin at 8 o'clock. A number of executive dinner parties had been planned prior to the request that Mr. Hearst visit Albany.

$200,000 HOTEL FIRE.

STROUDSBURG, Pa., May 17.—Fire destroyed the Montanesca, the largest hotel in the Pocono Mountains. The loss is estimated at $200,000.

WOMAN BADLY HURT BY LIFT

While attempting to board an elevator in the Compton Building at No. 161 Devonshire street, early to-day, Mrs. Bessie Enos, forty-one, of No. 318 Sumner street, East Boston, was thrown to the floor by the sudden starting of the car and seriously injured. She is at the Relief Hospital suffering from a probable fracture of the skull, a sprained back and severe lacerations of the scalp. Her condition is regarded as dangerous.

Mrs. Enos is one of a number of scrub women employed in the building and the accident happened soon after they had commenced work. Six of them had gathered near the door of Elevator No. 1 on the street floor, when the night watchman, George Lawrence, shouted to the fireman to put on the power. The door of the elevator was open and Lawrence started to test the power just as Mrs. Enos placed one foot in the car.

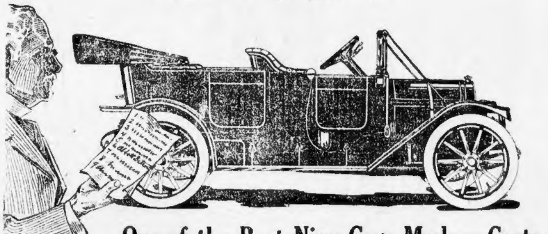
Abbott-Detroit
BUILT FOR PERMANENCE



One of the Best Nine Cars Made—Costs Much Less Than Any of the Other Eight

There are quite a number of American built motor cars rated as "Good"—there are but nine rated, by men who know, as "Best"—best, because only nine have amply shown, thoroughly demonstrated and satisfactorily proved their real worth by service. The value of any car is judged not by name, not by racing points, not by glittering advertising generalities, but simply by the amount of service it gives the owner.

The Abbott-Detroit is one of the best nine cars on the American market, but costs considerably less than any one of the other eight. The Abbott-Detroit, though primarily a touring automobile, has successfully competed (at 15 hours' notice) with special motor racing machines, and in each instance came out of the struggle alive, healthy and victorious, as for example the Vanderbilt Cup and Fairmount Park races. Read the daily bulletins of the "Abbott Bull Dog" now en route along the Mexican border. This car has traveled 30,000 miles and is still running—as an evidence of Abbott-Detroit reliability.

To conceive your ideal motor car in your own mind is one thing; to secure its interpretation within your appropriation is quite another. This requires discrimination and a careful comparison with other cars on the market. Write us for the booklet of the Abbott-Detroit and then choose for yourself.

GUARANTEE
This is to certify that the Abbott Motor Company will fully warrant and guarantee the Automobile covered by this certificate for its entire life, from the date of the original sale by the dealers. This guarantee also includes all material and all equipment, with the exception of tires, magneto, lamps, etc., which are warranted by their respective makers, used in connection with construction of said automobile. If any parts of this car break or prove shall forthwith communicate the fact to the Abbott Motor Company or one of its authorized dealers, giving the number of car and the name of the dealer from whom the car was purchased and the date of purchase, and it shall appear that such breakage was not in fact due to misuse, negligence or accident, the Abbott Motor Company will furnish such new parts either through its dealer or at the factory in Detroit, Michigan, free of charge to the owner. This guarantee does not apply directly or indirectly to consequential damage of any nature whatsoever or to the replacement of tires, which are guaranteed by the makers thereof.

Our Agencies Dot the Earth

Schlitz was brewed first in a hut over sixty years ago. Now our output exceeds a million barrels a year. Our agencies dot the earth.

More and more people every year are demanding Schlitz—Schlitz in Brown Bottles.

In our brewery we spend more on purity—in time—in skill—in money—than on any other cost in our brewing.

We scald every tub, keg and barrel—every pipe and pump—every time we use it. We wash every bottle four times by machinery. Even the air, in which the beer is cooled, is filtered.

If you knew what we know about beer, you would say, "Schlitz—Schlitz in Brown Bottles."

BEST THING YET IN BASEBALL---IT'S FREE

Here it is! The best thing yet in baseball. A handy book that tells you all that you can possibly want to know about the great national pastime and without costing you a cent.

Here is what it contains:

All the facts and statistics of last Fall's world's championship series.

The complete statistics—club and individual—of the American, National, Connecticut, New England, Eastern and all the other principal baseball leagues.

All the facts of interest in league baseball, past and present.

The complete official rules of league baseball, brought up to date.

All the odd things about baseball that have happened in years.

The official schedules of the American, National, Eastern, New England, Connecticut and all of the other principal baseball leagues.

All of these are compiled by the best experts that could be engaged.

This book gives you complete and accurate information about baseball. There is hardly an argument about the great national game that cannot be settled with this guide. And you know how many arguments you and all the other fans you know have every day of the Summer over the game of baseball.

Hundreds write to the AMERICAN sporting department for just such facts as these.

It won't cost you a cent to get this guide. You will buy the Sunday AMERICAN anyway—almost everybody does. For your five cents you will get the best Sunday newspaper in New England, a paper which has the third largest circulation of all of the Sunday newspapers of the world.

In the paper alone you will get more than $10,000 worth of news, features, pictures, comic drawings and all the other things that go to make up a complete, up-to-the-minute Sunday newspaper of to-day. Because that is what it costs to publish the Sunday newspaper every week of the year.

You'll get the best sporting section published anywhere in the country, and besides, you will get the baseball guide.

You can have the guide free, with the coupon which will be published in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

YACHT RACE BETWEEN STATES IN AUGUST

New York will meet Massachusetts at Marblehead August 17, 18 and 19 in a special series of yacht races for the Interstate trophy.

The races will be for boats in Class P, thirty-one raters, and will bring together the pick of boats in this class from both States. Last year three of the Massachusetts boats, Mavourneen, Amoret and Timasdra went around the Cape for these races in New York waters. Since that time the Mavourneen has gone to the Lakes and the other two boats of the Massachusetts team will find the going fast, as several new boats will be tried out for a place with the Massachusetts trio.

The Corinthian Yacht Club will have charge of the series of races.

FITCHBURG CRICKET CLUB READY TO PLAY

FITCHBURG, May 17.—The Fitchburg Cricket Club has arranged a schedule of games for the season. Great interest is being manifested in the games that are to be played between Worcester and Fitchburg, as there has always been great rivalry between these two clubs. They will play a series of four games, the first to be played next Saturday at Worcester. The schedule of the Fitchburg club is:

May 27, open; May 30, South Barre at Barre.

June 3, Worcester at Fitchburg; June 10, open; June 17, Maynard at Fitchburg; June 24, North Chelmsford at Fitchburg.

July 1, Worcester at Worcester; July 4, open; July 8, South Barre at Fitchburg; July 15, Maynard at Maynard; July 22, Lawrence at Fitchburg; July 29, North Chelmsford at North Chelmsford.

August 5, open; August 12, Worcester at Fitchburg; August 19, Lawrence at Lawrence; August 26, Zions of Lowell at Fitchburg.

September 2, Zions at Lowell; September 4, Merrimack Valley League at Lawrence; September 9, open.

CAPE COD OCEAN RACE WILL START JUNE 24

One of the best ocean races that has been scheduled for the Summer is the Cape Cod open race under the direction of the Corinthian Yacht Club of Marblehead. This race is scheduled for Saturday, June 24, the start at Marblehead at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The course will be to Thatchers Island, thence to Cape Cod and return. For a number of years this club has had an ocean race, last year's being to Portland lightship and return. The course selected by the regatta committee for this year's race is meeting with general approval among the yachtsmen and will undoubtedly attract a larger number of boats than any ocean race the club has started in past seasons. Vice-commodore William P. Wharton and former Rear Commodore H. S. Wheelock will give the trophies.

ROGER BRESNAHAN ILL AND OUT OF THE GAME

NEW YORK, May 17.—Roger Bresnahan, manager of the St. Louis National League Club, is confined to his room in his hotel with a severe cold, and probably will be unable to play for several days. In his absence, Miller Huggins will direct the team.

JOHNSON LOSES FIGHT IN COURT

NEW YORK, May 17.—In less time than it took Jack Johnson to whip Jim Jeffries in Reno last July a jury returned a verdict for $1,100 against the negro champion in the suit brought by Certaino Sciarrino, a sculptor, who asked $4,000 damages for having made a bust of the fighter which Johnson refused to pay for. In defence, Moses A. Sachs, counsel for Johnson, said the bust was made to be sold and that Johnson was to receive 25 per cent. from the profits.

In the morning Johnson was due to appear in the West Side Court on a summons accusing him of having driven his automobile without a license, but the case was adjourned.

HEAVYWEIGHTS TO BOX AT ARMORY A. A.

The Armory A. A. has matched Raymond Simon of the Armory A. A. and Joe Burke-Cox of Forest Hills for a special heavyweight bout at the amateur show May 28. The last time Simon appeared at the Armory he won over George Robinson in the best bout ever seen at the amateur shows held by that club. This is the first appearance at the Armory of Burke-Cox. He won the silver medal in the heavyweight class at the last National boxing championships, being defeated only by Severino.

TEN-MILE ROAD RACE AT SO. FRAMINGHAM

The second annual ten-mile handicap road race, open to all registered amateur athletes, will take place Saturday afternoon, May 27, at South Framingham. Hugh McGrath is the handicapper. Entries close May 24 with G. L. Whalen, South Framingham.

FINE SPARRING BY FAST BANTAMS

By JIM KENNEDY.

To-day Al Delmont is strutting about with the recollection of lusty cheers for him, and is satisfied, despite the referee's decision of a draw, that he was entitled to the verdict over Jimmy Walsh at the Armory last night. Likewise is Jimmy Walsh sticking his chest forward confident in the newspaper decisions given him today over Delmont. Jimmy thinks the newspapers know more than the referee. Delmont is sure that the audience in the Armory is better qualified to judge than either.

The crowd was sure a Delmont one. Most of the fight critics lean in favor of Walsh. Maffit Flaherty knows more than either or both or all of them about that particular event. Maffit was the referee. He called it a draw, and a draw it was and is.

But, be that as it may, none of the claimants to the bantamweight title need care which had won. Neither Delmont nor Walsh, as they disported themselves last evening, is fit to meet Johnny Coulon. Yet they gave as fine an exhibition of sparring as has been seen at the armory in some time. It was a good show and kept the audience on edge.

There was no slugging, no real hard hitting, not much foot work. Both boys faced each other and for twelve rounds they swung and ducked and jabbed and blocked with a rapidity and skill that was classy. No blood was spilt, no meanness evidenced, and round after round they came to the scratch with smiles. It was just such an athletic exhibition that all boxing should be.

Both men sparred with all the skill they possessed, but neither had the necessary steam behind the bows to do serious damage. They ended fresh, and might have continued a long time without evidence of weariness. Delmont and Walsh should go some place, where they can spar a longer distance. Their many even breaks at the Armory have lessened their capacity to draw big crowds. The winner of a longer exhibition would be a fine card matched against some live bantam weight, near to title honors.

Not a bit less interesting was the go between Tommy Foley of South Boston and Kid Scaler of Spokane, Wash. The boys fought with speed and aggressiveness, and Foley secured a well-earned but close decision in eight rounds.

Johnny Munice, an amateur, broke into the professional ranks against a tough young man from England named Harold Walker. Harold was right there with a peculiar style of his own and looks like a comer with more seasoning. He secured the decision.

Young Mulcahey of Worcester, outpointed and outfought from the first round, was all but knocked out in the fifth round of a six round go, when his seconds threw up the sponge. His opponent was Young Roche of the North End.

CORINTHIAN CLUB CHALLENGES FOR CUP

The Corinthian Yacht Club has challenged for the Quincy cup, now held by the Quincy Club. The races will be sailed in Quincy Bay, starting Monday, August 21. The regatta committee of the Corinthian Club will be governed in its selection for a challenger by the work of the boats in any races previous to the cup races and may require special trials if such a course seems expedient. As a number of new sonder boats will come out this Summer, it may bring together one of them and the Harpoon, the unbeaten sonder of last year and winner of the President Taft cup in the Spanish series, as the Harpoon will defend the cup for the Quincy Club. If a race of this sort takes place it will be of much interest; as one new sonder, the Ellen II., will represent the Boston Yacht Club against the old but fast sonder.

SATURDAY GAMES WANTED.

George J. Brown, No. 75 Sumner st., Lynn.

FIGHTING DICK NELSON LOSES

NEW YORK, May 17.—Jeff Smith, the Bayonne welterweight, outpointed Fighting Dick Nelson in a ten-round bout in Bill Brown's gymnasium. Dick failed to do as well aginst the Jersey man as was expected, allowing Jeff to pepper his face with stinging jabs throughout the ten rounds. Smith won the laurels in the sixth of the ten sessions, while the other four rounds were even.

BOYS' BALL TEAMS TO AVERAGE 18 YEARS

One hundred boys representing as many baseball teams met last night at the Newsboys' Club to talk over the preliminary arrangements for the baseball league of the new Municipal Athletic Association. Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the committee, presided. The call for the mass meeting stated that the league was to be for boys between 16 and 19 years of age. This announcement caused considerable discussion among the players and a compromise was finally agreed upon whereby the teams must average 18 years. On Tuesday evening, May 23, another meeting will be held at the Newsboys' Club when details of schedules will be worked out. Among those clubs registered last night were the following: Crescent A. C. of Roxbury; Neponset A. A.; Roxbury Institute; Orients, East Boston; Trojan A. C., Roxbury; Hiawatha, Roxbury; St. Joseph T. A. C., West End; Brookside Social Ath. Club of Roxbury; Walnut A. A., Roxbury; Dexter A. A., Dorchester; Hawthorne A. C., South End; St. Vincent Catholic Club, South Boston; Merrimac, West End; Roxbury Boys' Club, and Hale House Midgets, South End.

RUSTLERS IN FINAL GAME WITH PIRATES

By R. W. LARDNER.

It now becomes the aim of the Pirates to get out of this city without carrying with them a defeat. The Rustlers want to give them something that they'll remember longer than four victories. To-day's game winds up the Pittsburg series, and the inhabitants of Boston won't be sorry to see Fred Clarke's boys depart, whether they make it four straight or drop one.

If Jeff Pfeffer had gone through yesterday it would have been easy for Manager Tenney to pick a pitcher for to-day. Buster Brown would have been the man. But Jeff had a fierce first inning, and Buster had to finish up the game for him. So Fred is guessing this morning. He isn't particularly crazy about sending southpaws against the Pirates, but that appears to be about the only thing to do unless he wants to try Bill Parson or Herbert Perdue. It will probably be George Tyler and his opponent is likely to be Ferry.

The home run record at the South End grounds is now seventeen in nine games. Doc Miller tied Scotty Ingerton's mark by dropping two over the left field wall yesterday. One of Doc's was a really, truly swat. The other was a high fly which looked as if it would drop inside when it started. But it didn't. It cleared the screen by about an inch, and was only a foot or two fair, so you see Doc had a little luck.

Home Run History.

This wholesale home run clouting started a week ago last Saturday. It was on that day, in the third game against New York, that Ingerton poled two. In the closing game of the set with the Giants, Scotty grabbed off another one. Then, a week ago yesterday, the Reds came. Sweeney and Liz Beck got one apiece. Beck, Hoblitzell, Tom Clarke and Egan swatted them the next day. Last Thursday the honors fell to Brown, Ingerton and Miller, and Charley Herzog butted in to the frolic in the final brush with Griffith's team. Fred Hunter initiated the Pirates into the habit Saturday, and Honus Wagner learned the combination Monday. Then came Mr. Miller's proud feat.

BATTING ORDER:

PITTSBURG	BOSTON.
Byrne, 3b.	Clarke, l.f.
Leach, c.f.	Tenney, 1b.
Clarke, l.f.	Herzog, s.s.
Wagner, ss.	Ingerton, 3b.
McKechnie, 2b.	Miller, r.f.
Hunter, 1b.	Goode, c.f.
Wilson, r.f.	Butler, 2b.
Gibson, c.	Rariden, c.
Ferry, p.	Tyler, p.

A great many managers are superstitious. Evidently Fred Clarke is not. George Gibson's suspension was lifted yesterday, and Clarke immediately sent him in to catch. Now everybody knows that Gibby is one of the classiest workers in the business. But the Pirates had been winning with Mike Simon, and furthermore, Mike had made nine hits out of ten times since he reached Boston. Most leaders would have kept him in there until he stopped hitting or the team started losing. Not so Fred. He feels much safer when Gibson is in his accustomed place, and doesn't care a bit whether the combination is broken. Gibby walked twice and landed for a single and a double in five trips to the plate. Even Simple Simon couldn't have improved much on that.

The Rustlers would do well to aim their drives to right or right centre instead of toward the side of the field where Wagner is playing. Of course, it's hard to tell where he is playing, or, rather, where he isn't. Since the Pirates have been here this trip he has cornered enough ground to build a world's fair on. His most vicious habit is starting double plays and when he isn't starting them he is trying to. He wanted people to remember him on the way home last night so he caught Herzog's liner, the last wallop of the game, in a most peculiar manner. His arm wasn't long enough to reach it naturally and the jump was almost too high, so he swung his big mitt under the ball until he had driven most of the air away. The pill was thus attracted into the vacuum and brought within grabbing distance.

Fatal First Inning.

If Jeff Pfeffer's first inning could have been eliminated, yesterday's game would have been almost normal and very close. But the Pirates took kindly to what Jeff had to offer and swatted him hither and thither until they had amassed six juicy tallies. Buster Brown showed his old effectiveness against the Pittsburgers from that time on, allowing for the new ball, etc. Wilson and Gibson bunched a single in the sixth on Leach's two-bagger and Wagner's single. A pass to Byrne, a triple by Manager Clarke and a boot by Butler gave them a pair in No. 8 and another pass and single, Byrne producing it, making the total 11 in the ninth.

The big Ingerton-Miller syndicate got busy in the second. Scotty walked, moved to third on Doc's single and counted on a double play. Rariden opened the third with a hit on which Wagner sat down. Brown was easy, but Josh Clarke singled to centre. Tenney forced Josh, but Herzog's single and Ingerton's double followed and two runs were chalked up. It was too bad that Miller couldn't have delivered one of his homers in this round. His first came in the sixth with Herzog on base and his second happened in the eighth and drove in Ingerton, who had singled.

BERMUDA RACE PRIZES NAMED

The Royal St. George Yacht Club of Bermuda has notified the regatta committee of the Boston Yacht Club through its representatives, Hollis Burgess of this city and Thomas Fleming Day of New York, that the club wid give a $200 trophy to the winner of the Boston to Bermuda sailing race that starts off City Point June 23. The city of Boston gives a $500 trophy.

Three cutters have been received. The Vagrant, the schooner owned by Harold S. Vanderbilt of the New York Yacht Club; Sunshine, owned by V. H. Carmichael of New York, and the schooner Adventuress, owned by S. A. Moot of Marblehead. Entries close May 20.

RUSTLERS' AFFAIRS REMAIN THE SAME

The Boston National League Baseball Club's affairs will be conducted for another week at least just as they have been since the season opened. A meeting of the stockholders was scheduled for this morning, and it was expected that the disagreement between President William Hepburn Russell and Vice-President L. Coues Page would be threshed over and someadjustment made.

The stockholder met and immediately adjourned until next Wednesday morning. Vice-President Page claims that President Russell and his friends are conspiring to secure more power and to lessen his own authority in the directorate. Mr. Page threatened a lawsuit to secure what he believes are his rights, but now it is thought the matter will be settled amicably.

DELMONT RUNS AUTO INTO WALL

Albert Delmont, bantam-weight boxer, who fought "Jimmy" Walsh to a draw at the Armory last night, abd a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday, when an automobile which he was driving swerved into the sidewalk on the long hill on Washington street, Newton Lower Falls. With his boxing partner, Young Jasper, and two other men, Delmont was on his way to Boston from his training quarters in Natick. As he neared the top of the hill two wagons, moving in opposite directions, blocked the road. Becoming confused he turned the machine and lost control. It struck the sidewalk with considerable force and came up against a wall.

ANNUAL TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The twentieth annual tournament for the Harvard Interscholastic tennis championship in singles will be held on Jarvis Field, Cambridge, May 20 and 22. The tournament will probably be brought down to the semifinals on Saturday, and completed on Monday and Wednesday.

The winner of the tournament will be qualified, as Harvard Interscholastic champion for 1911, to play at Newport in August for the national interscholastic Championship of the United States. This tournament, held in conjunction with the national championships in singles and doubles, is open only to winners of regularly authorized Interscholastic tournaments. No player will be allowed to compete in more than one interscholastic tournament previous to that played at Newport.

First and runner-up prizes will be given; also a championship shield to the school which wins the greatest number of points, each match actually won counting as one point.

Entries close at 6 p. m. sharp, Friday, May 19, with Arthur Sweetser, secretary, Harvard Crimson, Cambridge.

RED SOX REACH CHICAGO TODAY

DETROIT, Mich., May 17.—It was an indignant host which Manager Patsey Donovan marshalled into the Michigan Central station last night. The boys from Boston had been forced to take the short end of three out of four games at the hands of the Tigers, yet every game lost contained many plays, any of which, if changed, would have radically altered the result.

Not one of the Red Sox failed to have some personal grievance at Umpires Connolly and Egan. Certain it was that the Red Sox are able to recall decisions in each of the games lost, which, had they been given otherwise, would have entirely changed the result of the conflict. Yesterday's game, however, contained fewer of these than any of those which had preceded. For once the Tigers clearly out-batted the Red Sox and looked to have a fairly clear title to their victory.

Left-Handers Fail.

Manager Donovan himself admitted that the performances of his left-handers had disappointed him. Karger started twice and was knocked out of the box on both occasions, though once the Red Sox made good the huge margin of runs which the Tigers had amassed. Collins lasted through a whole game, but was defeated. Wood and Cicotte, right-handers, in fact did much better than the southpaws, while Killilay's brief performance in the first game of the series indicated that he, too, had the Tiger number.

Manager Donovan believes that the time has come when a left-hander must have every bit as much speed, control and curves to succeed in the American League as a right-hander.

"Practically all the clubs are now equipped with right-handed batsmen whom they use as soon as a left-hander goes on the mound," said he. "Drake at Detroit is an instance. His work against our southpaws helped a lot in making their row a hard one to hoe. Detroit used to be considered a mark for any kind of a left-handed pitcher who had fair control and a curve ball. The team can be considered so no longer. We went through the same experience, but now have our team so arranged that it contains only three left-handed hitters normally, and we can bench one of these and put in Riggert if we find it necessary."

Donovan believes that, if Speaker had been in line with the club, it would have won at least two of the games out of the three lost to the Tigers. He points to the fact that Riggert's weakness in handling ground balls cost Boston one game, while his failure to make a hit in five times up was also a feature which is very different from Speaker's normal performance.

Sox Miss Speaker.

Donovan gives his youngster all sorts of credit for the game exhibition which he has put up, but says its absurd for any one to try and convey the impression that he can, on such short notice, step into the shoes of a man like Speaker and fill the bill as the Texan would do it.

Donovan was much interested in the results of the Chicago-Athletics series, in which the former club is as yet undefeated, after three successive victories over the world's champions. When asked whether he thought the cause was the poor work of the Athletics or the sudden coming to life of the White Sox, he said he would be better able to form an opinion after his own club had encountered Highey Duffy's men.

There is a chance that Killilay may be the pitcher who will start against Chicago, although Manager Donovan wants to look at the latter club before making up his mind definitely.

Despite the fact that the Red Sox won one victory less than the New York club did in its series, immediately prior, general opinion locally places the men from Boston in a position considerably above Hal Chase's team. They showed ability to slug on even terms with the Tigers at any stage, and, according to local belief, should finish close to the Tigers, in case their pitchers are able to come anywhere near holding their own with the hostile twirlers whom they will face during the league campaign.

Somerville High and Everett High will battle in a Suburban League game on Broadway field this afternoon. The Red and Blue team will go right in for a victory, for the game will put them in the running for high honors with Melrose and Medford.

Coach Tift has had his team playing up to the standard during the past week and on Saturday they defeated the hard hitting Rindge M. T. S. team. A new pitcher was unearthed at the school in Whitacker and it is expected that he will take the mound this afternoon.

Everett High have not been playing up to their standard in the league games this season. They have a hard hitting team, but they do not hit when hits mean runs and a first class pitcher is missing.

Several other good school games are on the card. Medford High will try conclusions with Wakefield High School at Wakefield and it is expected that they will run away with the game. Boston College High will be Cambridge Latin's opponents over in Cambridge, and Dedham High will clash with Arlington High at Arlington. The High School of Commerce will go down to play Haverhill High at Haverhill, and Winchester High will play Stoneham High team at Winchester.

For the first time in a number of years Harvard plays baseball with Syracuse on Soldiers Field this afternoon, the game being called at 4 o'clock sharp. Just what kind of a proposition Harvard is up against this afternoon is a pretty hard question to figure out, for the Yellow boys haven't played any teams around this section of the country, and no comparisons can be made. Syracuse has been playing teams from the West right along, and has only won three of the six games played, losing rather heavily to Penn State 13 to 2, while the visitors today have won and lost in games with Michigan. The game should be a hard one for Harvard, but if the Crimson keeps up the pace she has been hitting right along a victory should be forthcoming for the local nine.

The Harvard team will line up as usual, with Captain McLaughlin back at his field job, as his presence will probably not be needed in the box, which will be filled in all likelihood by Babson, the second twirler on the Harvard nine.

HARVARD ATHLETES FOR ENGLISH MEET

Although no definite date has been fixed for the international track meet between Yale and Harvard on one side and Oxford and Cambridge on the other, Harvard athletes have already begun to prepare for the event. From now on there will be regular training. The Americans will probably sail several weeks before the games in order to acclimate themselves.

A Successful Wife

By G. DORSET

Copyright, 1911, by Harper & Bros.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

ESTHER CAREY, a poor girl, whose father died when she was fifteen, and whose mother died soon after, leaving her with the care of five younger children, determined to face the world bravely, earn her own way and support the little family. They lived in Brackettsville, a New Jersey suburb of the great metropolis of New York.

She begins life as a stenographer in Wall Street at $5 a week and later secures a place as amanuensis for Mrs. William Falsworth in a Fifth avenue mansion. Falsworth, whose wife is a doll-like woman who does not understand him, falls in love with Esther. He gives her all the work of his firm and with this and with the work of other big patrons she is enabled to organize her own office on the Tenth floor of a Wall street skyscraper.

Where a few years before she was earning $5 a week, she nows employs four assistants and clears $2,000 a year.

Senator Bellars, one of her patrons, has her dictate a letter to a nephew of his, Stephen Kirkland, in Paris, asking him to give up his art studios and come to New York. The Senator believes his nephew is "going to the devil" in Europe.

Kirkland comes to New York and, like Falsworth, falls in love with Esther. She refuses Falsworth's offer to elope and he leaves for the West. While he was away Kirkland calls daily to have dictation work done, and one Sunday visits Esther at her home in Brackettsville. While he is seated on the piazza, Esther is amazed to see Falsworth coming up the road from the station.

Despite her effects, the two men meet face to face and Falsworth openly insults Kirkland. When the latter leaves Falsworth says, "Esther, that man must not come here again."

He tells her Kirkland is not fit for any good woman to associate with. He is enraged at the thought that Stephen is free to marry Esther, while he is "tied to a doll." He again asks her to flee with him. She refuses and Falsworth leaves again for the West. Kirkland calls one day soon after and after a walk with him she knows he is desperate in his love for her. Falsworth again urges her to go away with him, and she finally promises to do so in less than a week.

CHAPTER X

It Was Not Right

THE next day at the office I heard that Mr. Kirkland had gone to Washington. In that week I wrote upstairs for Senator Bellars. Sometimes I thought I had no right to be sitting there like that, and letting him trust me with his important affairs. Then I decided that business was business, and his work was safe with me, and he had nothing to do with my life, anyhow. He was dictating some speeches that he was going to make out West on a political tour. They were splendid. I was glad to take them. It helped me to keep from thinking. I couldn't look at Miss Long and Miss Frame half the time, and whenever I did they seemed to reproach me. Each morning I said, "Well, I am going to tidy up the office work to-day, anyhow;" and I'd put it off until the next day each time. Things were kept pretty well balanced, though, for I was very particular about it. There were only a few outstanding bills, and our credit was good.

Will kept his word about not coming into the office or writing me, and I liked him better and better for it, and whenever I had a minute to think I wished he would come in—and then the idea of him scared me so that I trembled at my machine. I went up Wednesday for the last dictation from the Senator. He said the work was excellent, and, as he had done before, he gave me a little extra check. I refused it firmly this time. First of all I said to him I hadn't earned it; then, secondly, I'd been overpaid for the work, since it interested me.

He put down the paper he was holding and looked at me, and I think he saw me then for the first time. He repeated.

"Interested you? You mean to tell me that you followed the matter of the work? Why, I thought you were a machine!"

I said that I couldn't help reading as I wrote, and when I had said this I was afraid I had been impertinent, for his face changed, and it made me glad I wasn't going to do typewriting any more. After to-morrow I could read his speeches and think what I liked.

"I thought you had the good fortune to be an ignorant woman," he grunted.

"I am ignorant, but I didn't think any one thought it was good fortune."

"Why, it's fatal," he continued, "for a woman to know more than to cook food for those under her roof."

I don't know how I dared to answer him, but I did.

"If I hadn't known a little more than that, sir, there wouldn't have been any food under our roof to cook!"

He said: "Nonsense. Some man would have come along and brought it in a paper bag, and the woman would have been kept feminine and normal; a woman should be an ignorant machine to be a successful factor in the scheme of life."

This was Wednesday night.

Didn't Go

I went to bed for the last time at home. I was to meet Will at 4 o'clock the next day at the Grand Central.

I didn't go.

At 4 o'clock I sat working at my machine, and my head ached so I couldn't see the keys. Miss Long had gone to Senator Bellars to tell him that I was busy, and I sent Miss Frame to collect some bills outside. I was positive Will would come directly to the office. I would have to bear it alone. I could hear his step all the way down the hall on near to a run. He slammed the door so the glass shook, and the letters, "Miss Esther Carey, Law Stenographer," seemed to dance. I must have read it upside down a hundred times that hour. Will threw his stick and gloves down on a chair, and didn't take off his hat; he was as pale as death.

"So you have cut loose, have you?"

His eyes seemed to be on fire.

"Will, I couldn't come."

"Why not?"

"Because it's not right!"

He laughed dreadfully.

"Oh, that's a good one! Not right? It's all right to treat me to this, I suppose."

My mouth was as dry as sawdust and my lips like straw. He had never been rough to me or rude.

"Now, look here." He was more quiet. "You don't want to drive me to hell, do you, little girl?"

To Be Continued To-morrow.

"THE composer Verdi still retains his popularity, I see."

"Yes; and always will. He was not only a good composer, but everybody can pronounce his name.'

To Develop the Bust

To Beauty Editor: I am so ashamed of my thin bust that I want to ask you if there is any harmless way to develop it. My hips and the rest of my body are right for the present styles and I do not want them any larger, but my bust is so flat that I would try anything that gave hope of even three or four more inches development. MARY S.

The only thing I know of that will develop the bust without increasing the size of the hips, or without putting on flesh where not needed, is a prescription put up by The Dr. Kelly Co., especially for small and undeveloped breasts. It is the discovery of a woman physician whose practice was largely among her own sex and in most cases increases the bust measure four to six inches in a month. Send 10c to the Dr. Kelly Co., Dept. 27E.A., Buffalo, N. Y., and they will send you a trial package of the treatment without charge. This is said to be of great value in cases of arrested development of the bust and will give a full, beautiful form without anyone knowing that the treatment was used.

Many mothers have told me that after the baby had been weaned the breasts became flabby and shrunken, but the use of Dr. Kelly's prescription made them full and firm. Do not use pads or bust forms, as they never look natural and have a bad effect upon the general health. Neither would I recommend ordinary flesh builders or tonics, as they increase the hips and limbs and with the present styles the form should be slender everywhere except a generously developed bust.

Woman's Great Crime Against Her Sisters

By DOROTHY DIX

A MAN correspondent propounds this riddle:

"Why is it that, although the average young woman is very anxious to become a wife and mother, when she marries and has sons of her own, she makes no effort to teach them to look upon marriage as a duty?"

Why? Because the average woman is just a plain, ordinary, selfish human being, and not a pin-feather altruist.

Every mother of a son goes through two Gethsemanes—once when she brings a man child into the world, and again when she sees him married. This is beyond all reason. It is just part of the mother nature.

A woman knows that her son should marry, that it is part of the scheme of nature that he should marry and found a home and family of his own. She also knows that it is best for him to marry, that he is likely to be a better man, to be healthier, happier and more prosperous if he does marry.

Nevertheless, in her secret soul, she hopes and prays that he won't marry, and that she will never have to go through the agony of seeing him love some other woman better than he does her. This is the secret of the strife between mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law. They are hereditary foes before ever the daughter-in-law is born.

When a woman feels this way about her prospective daughter-in-law and looks forward to her son's marriage as the greatest calamity that can ever befall her, it is easy enough to see why she doesn't teach a son to regard marriage as a sacred duty. None of us make very enthusiastic plans about our own funeral.

Mothers want their daughters to marry. They bring them up to marry, and with the idea of marriage always held firmly before them as their ultimate destiny.

But nobody ever says a word to a little boy about what he should do or shouldn't do when heis married. He isn't prepared for matrimony in any way. The whole subject is treated as if marriage was as much of an accident as being struck by lightning, and so little likely to befall a man that it really wasn't worth while for him to carry around a lightning rod.

Yet the vast majority of men marry, and women know it; but in spite of themselves each one can't help hoping that somehow, by some chance, her own precious darling son will escape. At any rate, she isn't going to bring the catastrophe upon her own head by representing marriage to him as a duty, and thus precipitating her doom upon herself before time.

To my mind, woman's greatest crime against woman is her attitude on this subject. Little as mothers may like it, it is their chief business in life to provide husbands for other women, and not only to provide husbands, but to provide good husbands.

It is in a mother's province to teach a boy to treat all women with courtesy and respect. It is the mother who can drill into her son the fact that the wife who keeps the house and makes the home, is entitled to a liberal allowance of money and should not be humiliated by having to ask for every penny as if she were a beggar. The mother can also teach her son that just to support a wife isn't doing a husband's duty by her—that she needs also tenderness and sympathy and appreciation.

Every woman who has a son could give some other woman a good husband if she would, and it is nothing but her rabid jealousy of this other woman that keeps her from doing it. That is a brutal truth that mothers will do well to face.

The Manicure Lady

She Recites Some Verses Wilfred Has Written for King George's Coronation

"THIS Spring weather makes me kind of lazy, kiddo," said the Head Barber, stretching himself and looking in vain for a customer. "It ain't much use sticking around here at all, the way business is. I wish I was out of it and knew something better to do."

"I tell you what let's do, George," said the Manicure Lady. "Let's all go over and see King George coronated. I suppose he is just as much a king now as he will be after the coronation proceedings is over; but as near as I can dope it out from the papers he has to go the route with the red tape."

"I wouldn't go across the street to see any coronation," said the Head Barber. "Gee, the Red Sox and the Rustlers are hitting rotten. They got to cut out a swifter pace than they are showing now, or there won't be any pennants floating around here this Fall."

"I wish you would get tired of talking baseball," snapped the Manicure Lady. "On the square, George, you are getting so all you can think about is a baseball. I'll bet you are getting seams in that round head of yours. That's all it needs now to make it just like a baseball. It has a horsehide cover."

"When you go home to lunch," sneered the Head Barber, "tell your brother Wilfred that you spent an enjoyable forenoon kidding the boss. Why doesn't he go over and see King George getting crowned? We wouldn't miss him here in Boston."

"That's funny," said the Manicure Lady. "I mean, it's funny you should mention Wilfred going over to the coronation. The poor boy was saying, just last night, that he's dying to go. The only thing that will stand in the way of it will be lack of the price.

"He was telling the old gent, last night, that he might work his way over on one of the coasting fruit schooners, like the men does in the magazine stories. The only drawback to that, as the old gent explained to him, was that the coasting schooners don't go across the pond at all.

"Wilfred says the main reason he wants to go is because he has wrote the most of a coronation ode, and he was thinking that they might let him recite it some time during the ceremony. He said that he wouldn't expect the best place on the bill, and that's just the trouble with brother. He is too retiring and shrinking, poor kid."

"If your brother ever went to London with a coronation ode," said the Head Barber, "the keeper of the royal seal would set the chamberlain's bloodhounds on him, or else they would have him stuck into a house and have him surrounded by 4,000 cops. He better keep off if he is thinking of breaking into poetry."

"But some of the lines is just fine," said the Manicure Lady. "How does this sound for instance?

"O King that is and King that was,
As Edward was before your time,
We bow to you today because
We think that you are just sublime,
O loyal monarch, splendid King,
You're just too grand for anything!

"There have been other Kings, O George!
Earl Warwick made them, I am told;
They filled their purses, filled their gorge,
And hanged the poor in days of old.
But such mean things you wouldn't do;
Dear George, we think the world of you!"

"I don't see anything good about it at all, said the Head Barber, "except that the new King has a good first name."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DO NOT WORRY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a stenographer, age eighteen, quite poor and good looking. I am good-natured, agreeable; in fact, am nicknamed "Smiles." I love music, books, etc., but always go to concerts and theatres with my sister. I have a good home, am a musician in a small way, and yet I am very unhappy. I never show it.

Every one I know thinks I am never "blue." I know plenty of men, but they are all married or paying attention to other young women, and I would never interfere with another woman's so-called "property."

I do not dance, and if I did it wouldn't do me any good, as I wouldn't get an invitation in sixty-two years, and I wouldn't go to a public dance hall for anything.

All the boys I knew in my school-days have either left town, married or are paying attention to other girls.

I have heard, from good authority, that two or three men have said I was one of the finest and most interesting girls they have ever met, and yet here I am.

I never get an invitation to go anywhere—to a party, theatre or anywhere else.

My mother is an invalid, having been ill for two years, which prevents me asking any girls with gentlemen friends, or without them, to call, as the slightest noise irritates her. I never go anywhere to meet any one, and I would never accept the attentions of any man without an introduction.

Now, the question is: How, when and where am I going to meet any new men?

Also, don't you think it low for a girl who wishes to become acquainted with a certain man to ask any one else who knows him to introduce her? Isn't this the man's place to do?

Also, don't you think it wrong to flirt? M. E. B. L.

MY dear young friend, at your age I would not worry about lack of men friends.

Some girls are not destined to have the attentions of many men, and it is due as much to their own qualities as to environment.

The only way for a working girl to meet men is either through her work or through her girl friends.

Don't be too eager or make undue advances, for there is nothing a man avoids more than a woman who pursues him.

By flirting and seeking acquaintance with men a woman demeans herself, not only in the man's eyes, but in her own.

Your devotion to your mother and determination to keep a bright smile on your face will not remain unrewarded, and will make you a much better woman, able to hold the love of a fine man worthy of being your husband.

And when that right man does come along, your joy and happiness will be far greater than those of your friends who have been spoiled by more attention.

ROOM FOR APOLOGY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a young man three months.

Through the fooling of my girl friend he felt insulted, and left me without saying "good night."

When I saw him again he did not speak. Would you kindly tell me what to do in this case? ANXIOUS.

On the special woman's page of the Sunday AMERICAN each week will be found a special feature article by Ella Wheeler Wilcox. The special features for women appearing regularly in the Sunday AMERICAN are the best ever printed in New England.

IF the insult was serious enough to justify the man's attitude, your girl friend should make an apology to him.

On the other hand, if you do not feel that the cause was sufficient to warrant his behavior, leave him alone, and he will soon realize that he was both ill-tempered and rude.

Philosophic Thoughts

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

IF THERE is anything in this theory of transmigration, many of the women will be sheep in the next world. No one but a sheep-lady would insist upon having a new hat for Easter because all the other women have new hats for that day.

The broadening influence of a large city, of which you read so much, means simply this: One rides farther on the street cars for five cents and see greater exaggeration in dresses and hats.

A man's idea of the sacredness of love receives its first shock when the girl whom he is to marry makes a circus parade of their engagement.

There is only one person in the world who has a legal and moral right to compliment a married man—his wife; and it is her opinion that he is conceited enough already.

Does a preacher's wife ever ask her husband to pray for her?

Marriage is that sacred institution that turns a confiding, unsuspecting girl into an amateur detective.

Best Hundred Catholic Books

From the Rosary Magazine.

WE are faced with difficulties of definition. Is a book Catholic because a Catholic has written it or because it deals with religious subjects from a Catholic point of view? For the purposes of a list of Catholic books the qualification must be only that they have been written by Catholics.

Once this definition is laid down, our difficulties only increase. Shall we class, say, St. Thomas Aquinas and Mr. T. P. O'Connor together as Catholic authors? Shall we put Sir Francis Burnand and Mr. Gilbert a Becket cheek by jowl with St. Bonaventure, Boethius and Friar Bacon?

We have barred theology because the list is for laymen; but shall we exclude law, medicine and philosophy? The great anatomists Sylvius, Fallopius, Steno—were all Catholics; the great lawyers—Suarez, Sanchez, Glanville, Tocqueville, de Maistre, Bracton—mostly belonged to the church, but their works are scarcely what one contemplates when one speaks of "Catholic authors."

To make a start one must begin with the Bible. To the mere layman it appears that Dr. Barry has been a little less than generous to the Douay and Reims Testaments, considered as literary documents, in his recent Dublin Review articles, and Father Pope's faint praise scarcely neutralizes his severity.

If the Bible be the first Catholic book, what shall be the second, the "Imitation of Christ" or St. Thomas Aquinas's "Against the Gentiles"? Did not Huxley, arrogant agnostic, fire-eating foe of faith, look on the "Summa" as the most marvelous work ever written? To determine the hierarchical order of Catholic books is too big a task. I shall simply heap together a few score of what may be considered among the best of them, and let wiser heads evolve order from chaos. For magnitude and erudition the "Catholic Encyclopedia" easily comes first. It is marvelous, but a little disappointing. You do not seem to get a square meal off an article in it. The general tone seems too often to be hesitatingly judicial, but probably this fault is its greatest virtue. Addis and Arnold's, or rather Scannell's, "Catholic Dictionary" is also a respectably erudite work.

In the matter of philosophy we come upon delicate ground, for, while we have philosophical works enough in English, the vast majority of them, unfortunately, deal with false and misleading systems and cannot be touched, save as curiosities of mental aberration, by Catholics, for whom and by whom they were not written. But on the philosophical shelf one turns to the Stonyhurst Manuals, valuable contributions all of Catholicity to popular philosophical science.

This list includes Maher's "Psychology," Rickaby's "First Principles" and "Moral Philosophy," Devas's "Political Economy," Clarke's "Logic," Boedder's "Natural Theology," and in their orthodox company we shall leave poor Mivart "On Truth" and Mr. W. S. Lilly's "Great Enigma" and other works. Strong meat for the mere lay reader, but not to be missed in any list of Catholic works, is Harper's "Metaphysics." What of Newman? We must simply add all his works, from the "Grammar of Assent" to the "Parochial and Plain Sermons," and also Allies's "Chair of Peter."

If you were to take these, volume by volume, you would have about forty of your hundred books. Suppose we add, with contemptuous generosity, the works of Manning, Vaughan, Father Faber, Wiseman and Ward, somebody will say that the list is for laymen, and that they are not all so philosophically minded. Even we shall have missed the most noted work on ethics in English, that of Dr. Cronin, to say nothing of Dr. Coffey's work on "Scholastic Philosophy" and Dr. McCaffrey's "History of the Catholic Church in Modern Times."

Mr. Hilaire Belloc says we want a good Catholic history, but we have all a weakness for Lingard. How many volumes of the one hundred shall we credit him with?

Was Shakespeare a Catholic? Possibly; certainly Ben Jonson was, for a time, and probably Marlowe. My list of books of that time must include Father Parsons, and Father Campion, as well as Crashaw's "Way to the Temple." You observe, we have scarcely touched the Continent. What of the great classics of Italy, France, Spain and Germany? Happily for our purposes they must be almost all ruled out, because we cater for English readers, and but few have been translated. Some of Calderon's works are in English, as "Life Is a Dream." Several of Corneille's, as "The Cid"; many of the masterpieces of Racine and Moliere. Of course the "Chronicles" of Froissart deserve a place, and the poems of Beranger. Shall we class Rabelais and Erasmus as Catholics? If so, several volumes are added to the hundred. Frederic Mistral's "Mireio" should also have a place, and Rene Bazin's "The Rising Corn" and the "Nun"—in fact, I would add every volume of his which has been Englished. The Abbe Prevost's "Manon Lescaut" is, of course, a classic, but scarcely a Catholic work, and Alexandre Dumas may perhaps have been a Catholic, but he is ruled out. Now that everybody is speaking about Portugal, you must have a volume of Camoens, and, of course, Fenelon's "Telemachus" and Bossuet's "Universal History."

The trouble is to compress the good books into the hundred. We have made no room yet for M. Maeterlinck, at least, "The Lightless," "Peleas and Melisande," and "The Treasury of the Humble," and had almost forgotten "The Confessions of St. Augustine."

Even the great Catholic poets, Chaucer, Pope, Dryden, Moore—not to mention Coventry Patmore, Aubrey de Vere, Faber, or Father Russell, will clamor for a volume of two each.

What, then, about the novelists—ancient and modern? After all, they are the most interesting books. I am a fanatical admirer of Father Sheehan. Six books at least of his must be found room for, and Father H. Benson is a good second. Then we have Gerald Griffin and the Banims. What about Miss Braddon? Shall we number her among the elect? Certainly no other woman has written so much enthralling fiction, so clearly and so wholesomely as she. With all his faults, we must find a place for the "Reliques of Father Prout," to say nothing of More's "Utopia" and the work of Lope de Vega.

One hundred is nearly filled and we have not mentioned Katharine Tynan, Rosa Mulholland, or M. E. Francis, to say nothing of Mr. Belloc. Lady Georgiana Fullerton was a favorite with Catholic families some time since, but honestly is too goody-goody for my taste. We shall scarcely have room for the works of J. Jeffrey Roche or John Boyle O'Reilly, or even of conscientious historians like Father Meehan or Father Denis Murphy—and we still have nothing of Erckmann-Chatrian or Jules Verne.

What about Max Pemberton, Virginia Crawford, Marion Crawford? Certainly push out as many of the others as needful, but make room for Marion Crawford. To have Italy treated from a Catholic point of view by a man of brains who can write, that is the unique charm he offers you. Now you have more than a hundred best Catholic books—and anyone can add another hundred.

OTTUMWA WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to you for my cure."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous medicine, made only from roots and herbs, has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The testimonials which are constantly being published in these advertisements are guaranteed to be absolutely genuine.

When the Spike-Tailed Lizard makes up his mind to destroy an enemy—and every living creature is his enemy—he proceeds in this wise: First, carefully noting the position of his foe, he curls his tail around and sinks the venomous spikes into some vital spot in the body of his victim, whereupon the latter dies in horrible agony.

Scientists have tried for years and years to discover an antidote for the poison of this hideous reptile, but so far without success. All of which looks very, very bad for Claude Eclaire. Pipe the evil sneer on Desperate Desmond's face. He can't see anything to it but slow music for our brave, but unfortunate, hero.

The only creature the Spike-Tailed Lizard fears is the Boa-Constrictor, which has an annoying habit of grabbing him around the neck and choking him to death before he can get his spikes into action. Luckily for Claude, the Boa appears just at this moment and causes the lizard to recoil in mortal terror.

But in so doing, the lizard jabs his spikes into the trunk of a tree, and is unable to get them out. The Boa-Constrictor, quick to see his advantage, gets a strangle hold on the swanlike neck of his foe and hangs on like grim death. Claude takes no part in the struggle, for the very good reason that his hands are tied.

But there's one thing our hero can do, and that is to start swinging as if he were in a hammock. Keeping this up until he acquires the needed momentum, he lets go and is propelled far out into the water. Now all he has to do is to swim ashore and rescue Rosamond from the clutches of that deep-dyed villain, Desperate Desmond.

And Claude can't be any too quick about it, either. Desmond has tied Rosamond to the top of a lofty palm and is preparing to slam her against the rocky cliff. If our hero doesn't arrive on the scene very soon, he'll be too late for anything but revenge. Let us hope for the best while we are waiting for to-morrow's pictures.

Hereafter Desperate Desmond's thrilling adventures will be a regular feature of Sunday AMERICAN. Don't miss the wonderful deeds of Claude Eclair and his Rosamond and their persistent foe, Desperate Desmond, in the Sunday AMERICAN.

The Romance of a Millionaire and a Beautiful French Singer

THE DE BERCY AFFAIR

A Fascinating Mystery Story by Gordon Holmes. Copyright, 1910, by E. J. Clode

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

MADEMOISELLE DE BERCY, a favorite of the stage, who came to London recently from her triumphs in Paris and won her way into the best circles in the fashionable West End, is found shockingly murdered in her luxurious apartments at the Feldisham Mansions.

Rupert Osborne, a rich young American, who was to have married her, is believed by the public to be her murderer. Chief Inspector Winter, of Scotland Yard, however, believes him innocent. Detective Clarke finds a taxicab driver who admits driving a man closely resembling Osborne to the woman's apartment ten minutes before the murder. Osborne, however, establishes an alibi.

It was found that Miss De Bercy was in reality Mirabel Armand, the daughter of a Jersey peasant. She was killed by a thrust through the right eye with a dagger-like weapon, and a prehistoric axe-head stolen from a museum was used to mutilate her face.

Furneaux, the shrewdest detective in Scotland Yard, is strangely agitated when detailed to take charge of the case. He admits he knew Miss De Burcy in Jersey years ago. Inspector Winter is puzzled by his subordinate's manner and resolves to watch him.

Osborne is warned by the police to hide himself in Tormouth, a seaside village. There, through a strange accident, he meets a young woman who is destined to play a remarkable part in the story.

Clarke has arrested two Anarchists, Janoc and Descartes. It is said Miss De Bercy was a member of an Anarchist society.

Later he discovers a brother of Janoc talking to Miss De Bercy's cook in a doorway of a West End street. He decides to keep his eye on the man.

Furneaux goes to Osborne's apartment, where he finds Hylda Prout, Osborne's secretary. He tries to get her to tell where her employer is, and inspects Osborne's museum, where there are many curiosities, including a number of "celts," or stone axe-heads, and one is missing. Directed by Miss Prout's finger, he also discovers a vacant place in the rack of knives and daggers. The girl suddenly cries that Osborne is innocent.

"She loves him," is Furneaux's thought, and he asks her when she first noticed that the dagegr was missing.

"ON the second afternoon after the murder, when I noticed that the celt, too, was gone."

"The second—I see."

"I wondered what had become of them! I could imagine that Mr. Osborne might have given the celt to some friend. But the stiletto was so rare a thing—I couldn't think that he would give that. I assumed—I assume—that they were stolen. But, then, by whom?"

"That's the question," said Furneaux.

"Was it this same stiletto that I have described to you that the murder was done with?" asked Hylda.

"Now, how can I tell that?" said Furneaux. "I wasn't there, you know."

"Was not the weapon, then, found in the unfortunate woman's flat?"

"No—no weapons."

"Well, but that is excessively odd," she said in a low voice.

"Why so excessively odd?" demanded Furneaux.

Why? Because—don't you see?—the weapon would be blood-stained—of course; and I should expect that after committing his horrid deed, the murderer would be only too glad to get rid of it, and would leave it——"

"Oh, come, that is hardly a good guess, Miss Prout. I shall never make a lady detective of you. Murderers don't leave their weapons about behind them, for weapons are clews, you see."

He was well aware that if the fact of the discovery of the celt had been published in the papers, Hylda might justly have answered: "But this murderer did leave one of his weapons behind, namely the celt; and it is excessively odd that, since he left one, the smaller one, he did not leave the other, the larger one."

As it was, the girl took thought, and her comment was shrewd enough:

"All murderers do not act in the same way, for some are a world more cunning and alert than others. I say that it is odd that the murderer did not leave behind the weapon that pierced the woman's eye and I will prove it to you. If the stiletto was stolen from Mr. Osborne—and it really must have been stolen—and if that was the same stiletto that the deed was done with, then, the motive of the thief in stealing it was to kill Mademoiselle de Bercy with it. But why should one steal a weapon to commit a murder? And why should the murderer have chosen Mr. Osborne to steal his weapon from? Obviously, because he wanted to throw suspicions upon him—in which case he would naturally leave the weapon behind as proof of Mr. Osborne's guilt. Now, then, have I proved my point?"

Head Tossed Back

Though she spoke almost in italics and was pale and flurried, she looked jauntily at Furneaux, with her head tossed back; and he, with half a smile, answered:

"I withdraw my remark as to your detective qualifications, Miss Prout. Yes, I think you reason well. If there was a thief, and the thief was the murderer, he would very likely have acted as you say."

"Then, why was the stiletto not found in the flat?" she asked.

"The fact that it was not found would seem to show that there was not a thief," he said; and he added quickly: "Perhaps Mr. Osborne gave it, as well as the celt, to someone. I suppose you asked him?"

"He was gone away an hour before I missed them," Hylda answered. She hesitated again. When next she spoke it was with a smile that would have won a stone.

"Tell me where he is," she pleaded, "and I will write to him about it. You may safely tell me, you know, for Mr. Osborne has no secrets from me."

"I wish I could tell you. . . . Oh, but he will soon be back again, and then you will see him and speak to him once more."

Some tone of badinage in these jerky sentences brought a flush to her face, but she tried to ward off his scrutiny with a commonplace remark.

"Well, that's some consolation. I must wait in patience till the mob finds a new sensation."

Furneaux took a turn through the room, silently meditating.

"Thanks so much for your courtesy, Miss Prout," he said at last. "Our conversation has been—fruitful."

"Yes, fruitful in throwing still more suspicion upon an innocent man, if that is what you mean. Are not the police quite convinced yet of Mr. Osborne's innocence, Inspector Furneaux?"

"Oh, quite, quite," said he hastily, somewhat taken aback by her candor.

"Two 'quites' make a 'not quite,' as two negatives make an affirmative," said she coldly, fingering and looking down at some wistaria in her bosom.

She added with sudden warmth: "Oh, but you should, Inspector Furneaux! You should. He has suffered; his honest and true heart has been wounded. And he has his alibi, which, though in reality it may not be so good as you think, is yet quite good enough. But I know what it is that poisons your mind against him."

"You are full of statements, Miss Prout," said Furneaux with an inclination of the head; "what is it, now, that poisons my mind against that gentleman?"

"It is that taxicabman's delusion that he took him from the Ritz Hotel to Feldisham Mansions and back, added to the housekeeper's delusion that she saw him here——"

Nearly Gasped

Furneaux nearly gasped. Up to that moment he had heard no word about a housekeeper's delusion, or of a housekeeper's existence even. A long second passed before he could answer.

"Well, she was no doubt mistaken. I have not yet examined her personally, but I have every reason to believe that she is in error. At what hour, by the way, does she say that she thought she saw him here?"

"She says she thinks it was about five minutes to 8. But at that time, I take it from the evidence, he must have been writing those two letters at the Ritz. If she were right, that would make out that after doing the deed, at about 7:40 or so, he would just have time to come back here by five to 8, and change his clothes. But he was at the Ritz—he was at the Ritz! And Mrs. Bates only saw his back an instant going up the stairs—his ghost's back, she means, his double back, not his own. He was at the Ritz, Inspector Furneaux."

When Her Son Sought a Bride

Mrs. Rowe Was Sure the Finest Girl in the World Was Not Good Enough for Him

By KENNETH HARRIS.

MRS. AUSTIN ROWE, sitting at her little, spider-legged, inlaid desk, pushed a small pile of letters to one side and choked down a sob.

She was still dabbing at her eyes, with a scrap of lace handkerchief, when her husband entered the room and caught sight of her. He was not a keen-sighted man, this Mr. Austin Rowe, but thirty-odd years had given him a tolerably intimate knowledge of the emotional aspect of his wife's back, so he crossed the room and patted it gently.

"Why, mother!" he remonstrated.

She turned to him with a piteous attempt at a smile. "It's Peter," she explained. "I suppose it's very silly of me, but"——

Mr. Rowe looked grave, but the corners of his mouth twitched. He drew up a chair and sat down. "Of course, it's going to be hard to lose him, at first, but you—we had to expect it some time," he said. "It's natural, you know, mother."

"Oh, I know that, of course," said the matron, somewhat impatiently. "I knew he'd get engaged, but I did hope that he would fall in love with some nice, sweet girl that I liked and could welcome as a daughter."

This time Mr. Rowe smiled. He leaned over and took from the desk a letter of many pages, written in a big headlong hand. "He seems to think that he has fulfilled that hope. 'Sweet' is one of his most numerous adjectives. She's sweet and beautiful and affectionate and talented and charming and sweet and domestic and sensible and sweet and sweet"——

The Woes of a Mother.

"What does Peter know about women?" demanded Peter's mother. "If I had gone with the boy, as I intended, this would never have happened."

"I know you would have done your best to prevent it, my dear."

"Indeed I would."

"But it seems that she's all that Peter says, nevertheless."

Mrs. Austin Rowe sat up very straight and looked hard at him.

"Do you know this young woman?" she asked.

"Tut, tut! You know that I don't. But I know her family. You can't find any fault with that, can you, mother?"

"The family is all right, I suppose."

"Good! Let's reason this out, sensibly. The family is not only good, it's wealthy. The old gentleman's influence can do quite a lot for Peter. We know that."

"Peter can make his own way," declared Mrs. Austin Rowe, proudly.

"I grant that. He's a clever fellow, and he's got lots of force and stay-with-it-iveness; but every little helps, just the same. But we were talking about the girl, of course. Well, old Nicholson tells me that she really is a fine, wholesome girl, and bright as a dollar. He's known her all her life. I was talking to him to-day."

"I don't think much of Mr. Nicholson as a judge of a young girl's nature."

"Didn't Kitty Hewlett write you the same thing? There's her letter on the desk with the others. Let's look at it."

"I know what she said. She didn't say she was fine and wholesome."

"What then?"

Mrs. Rowe looked annoyed. "She said she was—sweet. Kitty says everybody's sweet."

Her husband laughed. "Old Mrs. Langlois doesn't say everybody's sweet. I never knew her to miss a good chance to knock. Wasn't it Mrs. Langlois told you about her Wellesley record? She said Peter was lucky, didn't she?

"I felt like telling her to leave my house. The idea! Peter lucky! These clever women aren't the ones that make good wives, either."

"My married life hasn't been unhappy," said Mr. Rowe.

She shook her head at him, but with a half smile.

"Mrs. Diller Reid's letter seemed to me fairly satisfactory, too," pursued Mr. Rowe. "Hand it over, my dear. Thank you. Let's see now. Here we are: Just as modest as she is accomplished. Altogether unspoiled in spite of the fact that she has been the most sought-after girl in her set ever since her coming out. How's that?"

"If you'll read on a little farther you'll see that she says the girl has a spirit of her own."

"Nothing wrong about that, is there?"

"That means that she's got a bad temper. That's what their friends always say about bad-tempered people, and I don't care how clever she is, nor how rich or accomplished, my darling boy is never going to be happy with a bad-tempered wife. You may laugh, but you'll just see. A termagant may be your idea of a wife for your son, but it isn't mine."

"Come," said Mrs. Rowe, good naturedly, "I think you are taking a rather gloomy view of the matter, Mother. You haven't heard anything else about her that's in the least detrimental, have you?"

The Meaning of a Proper Spirit

"Isn't it enough to know that Peter is going to be made miserable?" demanded the mother, tragically. "Don't you think it's natural that I would feel upset with such a prospect as that? Do you think I'm going to smile placidly when I see my child grow haggard and careworn and desperate as the years go by? No, indeed!"

"But listen, dear," said her husband. "It may not be so bad as that. Mrs. Reid may just mean that she has a proper spirit. She may intend to convey the idea that the girl isn't an absolute mush of concessions—not namby-pamby, don't you see? I don't pretend to your natural penetration sharpened by the maternal instinct, but that's the view I'm inclined to take.

"If you'll consider that as a possibility, in connection or conjunction with the good reports that we have had from other sources—that she's modest and kind and talented and affectionate, as well as beautiful and well-bred——"

"I'm not going to make any difficulty about it," said Mrs. Rowe, with a deep sigh. "If Peter loves her I shall welcome her and sacrifice my own feelings. I shall hope for the best under all circumstances, because it's my nature to be hopeful. B—but, oh, Austin."

Mr. Rowe patted her again.

"If the p—poor—f—foolish boy had only let me choose for him!"

FREE TRIAL OF SAMOSE

Flesh-Forming Food Given on Approval by Druggist at Houghton & Dutton Company.

Would you like to be fat and plump and strong and hearty? Here is a chance, so do it without risking the loss of a single penny.

Houghton & Dutton Co. are well-known druggists. They have a new treatment called Samose, which they are selling on approval, that is said to be a true flesh forming food. It is in tablet form, retailing at 50c a box.

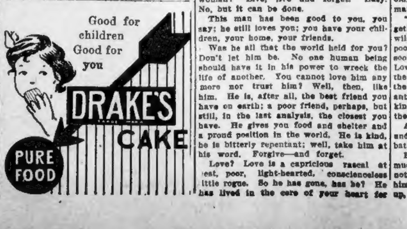
If it does not increase the weight, fill out the thin, scrawny form and restore health and strength, there will be no charge whatever for Samose. Go to Houghton & Dutton Co. today and get a treatment of Samose with their promise to refund the money if it does not do all that it claims.

Houghton & Dutton Co.'s faith in Samose is shown by their offer to refund the money if it does not increase flesh and restore good health.

They really give you a free trial of the preparation, for unless it does increase the weight it will not cost a cent.

What Causes Skin Troubles

If the skin is constantly irritated by anything of a chemical or mechanical nature eczema often follows. Overstimulating ointments containing sulphur or mercury frequently cause that itching disease. Grocers, bakers, bricklayers and others become afflicted with eczema upon the hands because of the irritating action of sugar, lime, brick-dust, etc. Few people go through life without some form of eczema. The best and most reliable remedy is Cadum, the new skin preparation, that stops itching at once and effects a cure in many cases. A single application will convince any one of its remarkable healing powers, not only in eczema, but also in redness, pimples, blotches, rash, roughness, scaly skin, chafings, acne, sores, ulcers, eruptions, hives, tetter, itch, herpes, psoriasis, ringworm, itching piles. Trial box, 10c.



When Love Has Flown

By WINIFRED BLACK

SHE loved her husband, and believed in him, and was very happy. And the other day she found a letter in his pocket, and now she knows the awful thing that makes her love a mockery and her heart a temple of bitterness.

"What shall I do?" she says. "My life is broken. I shall not leave my husband, for there are three children, two of them half grown, and he has been good to me in so many ways, and he says he is sorry and promises never to deceive me again.

"I am not angry now; at first I was. At first I had all I could do to keep from finding the other woman and strangling her to death with my bare hands. Oh, I could have done it then, but now I am sorry for her, poor fool! She believed in him, too, and thought he really loved her, and now he is ready to give her up as lightly as he betrayed me.

"No; I do not hate him; I feel a contempt for him; a kind of pitying contempt. But what about all these years that stretch before us? What shall I do? I shall keep up the pretense before other people, but oh, how lonely the years will be, how lonely, how bitter, how dead in all that makes them worth the living."

What shall you do, foolish, heart-broken woman? Live, live and forget. Easy. No, but it can be done.

This man has been good to you, you say; he still loves you; you have your children, your home, your friends.

Was he all that the world held for you? Don't let him be. No one human being should have it in his power to wreck the life of another. You cannot love him any more nor trust him? Well, then, like him. He is, after all, the best friend you have on earth; a poor friend, perhaps, but still, in the last analysis, the closest you have. He gives you food and shelter and a proud position in the world. He is kind, he is bitterly repentant; well, take him at his word. Forgive—and forget.

Love? Love is a capricious rascal at best, poor, light-hearted, conscienceless little rogue. So he has gone, has he? He has lived in the core of your heart for years, and now he bids you a light good-by, and goes singing down the road to newer fields, lighter hearts than yours.

Well? The sacred room of your heart is empty now. Sweep and garnish it; love has gone—gone forever. Call friendship, camaraderie, good-humored fellowship, warm-hearted fealty, in to visit. They'll stay longer and wear better than that little, singing vagabond Love, anyhow.

You're about thirty-five, I should judge, by the age of those children. Thirty-five; well, you've held your vagrant guest longer than most. Walk with him to the corner of the road, wave him a friendly good-by and go home again, at peace, in comfort.

Call in your children, get acquainted with their griefs and joys. You've let your old friends think you had forgotten them; get them around you again. There's a new library in town; join it. What's become of that interesting art you used to profess? Music lives yet, even if love has gone. Music and flowers and the sweet smile of Spring and the deep welcome of laughing Summer.

The world is full of joy and interest and friendship and of things to learn and to understanding. I'm thirty-five years old. I've been looking for you all these many days.

"Come, let's go down the world together, and let's sing as we go, not the wild, thrilling song that love taught us—poor Love, how he loves to teach and how soon he forgets what he has taught, poor Love—not his song now, but still a song, the song of the strong who triumph over the treachery of time. All quiet, pleasant paths are open to us, good friendship, kind comrade. Come, let's walk down them together."

And when you have said these things, and said them with all your heart, the battle is won for you.

For him? He slipped and fell in the mud, poor fellow! He was weak and could not stand alone. You can never care for him deeply again, of course, but help him up, brush the mud from his clothes, help him bind his wounds. This life is short and for many of us it is very hard.

For him, too? Perhaps.

Guess

THE manager of a department store had advertised for help, so he had to admit the fair applicant who had just been announced. She had evidently never worked in a store before. And so, when she inquired about the advertisement, the manager spoke gently:

"It is true that we need a girl," said he. "As a matter of fact, we need two girls. We need one at the glove counter, at $5 a week. And we need one at the candy counter, at $5 a week, with the privilege of eating all the candy she cares for. You say you have never worked before? Well, which job do you choose?"

And here, gentle reader, let us leave our heroine. Which job did she take?

PETERMAN'S DID IT

Dickory, Dickory, Dock, Mama looked at the clock,
"Only half past nine and the clothes on the line,
I tell you washing with Fels-Naptha is fine,
And every last piece, even to baby's frock,
Is clean and white." Dickory, Dickory, Dock.

Ask any doctor if there is a quicker way to catch cold than to get all steamed up and then go into the cold air.

Some women folks get colds like that nearly every washday.

They do their washing in the old boiling way with a hot fire and steaming suds.

The Fels-Naptha way of washing is a wonderful health-saver.

It takes away all danger of catching cold.

The washing is done in cool or lukewarm water—no boiling or steaming, no hot suds.

It's much easier, too.

You don't wear yourself out because the Fels-Naptha does all the work—no hard rubbing.

There are other reasons why you should use Fels-Naptha Soap.

It doesn't take half as long as the old way; saves fuel; much easier on the clothes and makes them cleaner and sweeter.

But, if you value your health, that alone is good reason for doing your washing the Fels-Naptha way. In the Winter or Summer.

Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STOCK OPENING IS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, May 17.—The stock market felt the "day after" effect to-day, opening irregular with prices ranging both off and upward. B. R. T., U. S. Steel, and Canadian Pacific were off, while St. Paul American Smelting, Atchison, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania and other standard issues opened with advances.

The strength of Americans in London market was undoubtedly a big factor and the bear raiders who got busy late yesterday felt the pressure of overnight buying orders placed in New York and abroad.

On the curb market American Tobacco opened ⅛ up and Standard Oil was also strong.

No severe reaction as a result of the Standard Oil decision was expected, although traders declared that the market might continue irregular for a time, despite the support of both financiers and the investing public.

In the initial prices the following gains were recorded. Pennsylvania ⅛, Atchison ⅜, Southern Pacific ⅛, St. Paul ½, Erie ⅛, and American Smelting ⅛; the declines were B. R. T. ⅛, Steel ⅛, Canadian Pacific ¼; Reading opened unchanged. Trading on the curb was active and the list opened strong.

The Supreme Court Has Killed Anti-Trust Act

Congress Must Now Deal With the Whole Trust Problem

The practical effect of the Standard Oil decision is to reduce the Sherman Anti-Trust Law to punk and putty.

The Supreme Court has nullified the single important Federal statute on the trust question—has destroyed the nation's chief defence against interstate monopolies.

Thus the whole trust problem is thrown wide open for the people to take up anew and settle definitely, for the Supreme Court's latest ruling leaves it more unsettled than ever.

The Sherman act as it now stands—bathed in an ineffable "light of reason"—is of no more earthly use than the seraphim. It is a creature of pure idealism. Its claws are cut and its teeth are drawn.

It is evident that the Standard Oil Company has suffered no setback in its career of aggression and that its officers feel no discomfiting reproof.

"Convicted" under a criminal statute which provided both fine and imprisonment as penalties of guilt, its officers are neither fined nor imprisoned, and the general counsel of the trust, Mr. Elliott, gives out an official statement in which he says that "the Standard Oil Company will obey the decree of the court, and all THE COMPANIES EMBRACED IN THE COURT'S DECREE WILL CARRY ON THEIR BUSINESS AS USUAL under the direction of their own officers and through their own corporate organization.

The Supreme Court has reversed the National Legislature. It has also reversed itself. For this idea of putting a weasel-word into the Sherman act is old. It has a judicial history about as long as its legislative record. And up to this week the Supreme Court has steadily and consistently refused to amend the life out of the law by putting into it the word "unreasonable."

This exact point has been passed upon, and this precise temptation has been put aside. Thus in the famous case of the United States against the Trans-Missouri Freight Association, Justice Peckham, delivering the opinion of the court, said: "The body of the act pronounces illegal every contract or combination in restraint of trade * * the meaning is not limited to that kind of contract that is in UNREASONABLE restraint of trade, but ALL CONTRACTS are included, and NO EXCEPTION OR LIMITATION CAN BE ADDED, WITHOUT PLACING IN THE ACT THAT WHICH HAS BEEN OMITTED BY CONGRESS."

It is thus made perfectly clear by the records of the court that the court has performed a deliberate right-about face. It decided, the other day, to do what theretofore it had decided not to do.

How was this remarkable change brought about? Doubtless it was brought about through the recent elevation to the Supreme bench of new men of Mr. Justice Hughes's type and of Mr. Justice Lurton's type. By such additions a minority of the court, which has always been disposed to interpret the anti-trust laws "in the light of reason," has been transformed into a majority, and the anti-trust law is, in effect, repealed.

There have been seventeen important Supreme Court decisions under the Sherman act. In ten of these cases the government won and the defendant trust lost, and in seven cases the trust won and the government prosecution failed.

Now note the trend of diverse judicial minds. Justice Harlan not only wrote the opinions convicting the Northern Securities Company and the Continental Wall Paper Company, but he voted against the defendant trust in TWELVE OTHER CASES, making fourteen out of seventeen.

Chief Justice White's great judicial mind has moved steadily in the opposite direction. He concurred in all the seven cases where the defendant trusts were found NOT guilty AND HE WROTE DISSENTING OPINIONS IN FOUR OF THE TEN CASES in which the defendant trust, prosecuted under the anti-trust law, was found guilty by a majority of the justices.

Justices Peckham, Brewer and Fuller, who, in a majority of these test cases, affirmed and enforced the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, have since died. Their successors, including Justices Hughes and Lurton, now join Mr. Justice White, who, in the seventeen test cases under the Sherman law during his service as justice, has decided fourteen times in favor of the defendant and only three times in favor of the people.

The crimes of which the Standard Oil was convicted are described in these words by Mr. Justice White, in summarizing the government's case against the trust: "The defendant takes its birth in a proposition to acquire wealth unlawfully by oppressing the public and destroying the just rights of others. Its entire career exemplifies an inexorable carrying out of such unlawful intents, since the pathway of the combination, from the beginning to the filing of the bill, is marked with constant proofs of wrong inflicted upon the public, and is strewn with the wrecks of crushing out, without regard to law, the individual rights of others."

We copy the language of the court so that we may not be suspected of overstatement. But "conviction of these offences means, as the fine of $29,000,000 against the trust in a lower Federal Court three years ago, meant no serious embarrassment for the trust and no pecuniary loss whatever. It means that a single New Jersey corporation, which owns no oil wells, operates no pipe lines and markets no product—only one of the 110 or more separate companies which the Standard Oil Company's stockholders own—is to be dissolved, leaving all the other companies to go on "doing business as usual under the control of their officers and directors" and, in the language of the Supreme Court, "a like restraint, or attempt to monopolize, or monopolization, would not necessarily arise from agreements between one or more of the subsidiary corporations after the transfer of the stock by the New Jersey corporation."

Congress having refused during twenty-one years either to repeal or to amend the anti-trust law by interpolating the word "reasonable," the Supreme Court has, by "mere judicial construction," as Justice Harlan says, so amended it, and THERE IS NO LONGER ANY FEDERAL

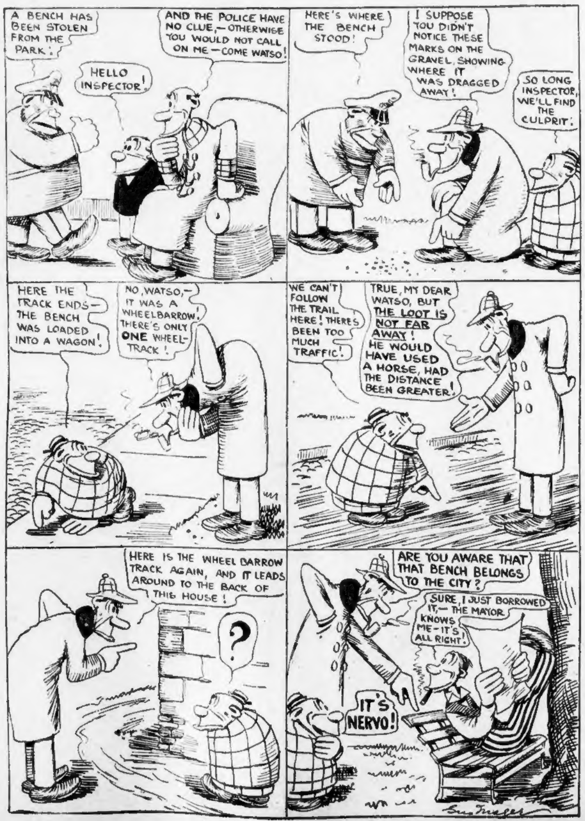
No Mystery Is Too Baffling for Him



A BENCH HAS BEEN STOLEN FROM THE PARK!
HELLO INSPECTOR!
AND THE POLICE HAVE NO CLUE,—OTHERWISE YOU WOULD NOT CALL ON ME—COME WATSO!
HERE'S WHERE THE BENCH STOOD!
I SUPPOSE YOU DIDN'T NOTICE THESE MARKS ON THE GRAVEL, SHOWING WHERE IT WAS DRAGGED AWAY!
SO LONG INSPECTOR, WE'LL FIND THE CULPRIT!
HERE THE TRACK ENDS— THE BENCH WAS LOADED INTO A WAGON!
NO, WATSO,— IT WAS A WHEELBARROW! THERE'S ONLY ONE WHEEL-TRACK!
WE CAN'T FOLLOW THE TRAIL HERE! THERES BEEN TOO MUCH TRAFFIC!
TRUE, MY DEAR WATSO, BUT THE LOOT IS NOT FAR AWAY! HE WOULD HAVE USED A HORSE, HAD THE DISTANCE BEEN GREATER!
HERE IS THE WHEEL BARROW TRACK AGAIN, AND IT LEADS AROUND TO THE BACK OF THIS HOUSE!
ARE YOU AWARE THAT THAT BENCH BELONGS TO THE CITY?
SURE, I JUST BORROWED IT,— THE MAYOR KNOWS ME—IT'S ALL RIGHT!
IT'S NERVO!

Supreme Court Has Killed Anti-Trust Act

ANTI-TRUST LAW OF PRACTICAL VALUE. President Taft, eminent lawyer, as well as courageous executive, wrote in his special message to Congress on this subject on January 7, 1910:

> It has been proposed, however, that the word "reasonable" should be made a part of the statute, and then that it should be left to the court to say what is a reasonable restraint of trade, what is a reasonable suppression of competition, what is a reasonable monopoly. I venture to think that this is to put into the hands of the court a power impossible to exercise on any consistent principle which will insure the uniformity of decision essential to just judgment. It is to thrust upon the courts a burden that they have no precedents to enable them to carry, and to give them a power approaching the arbitrary, the abuse of which might involve our whole judicial system in disaster.

The Supreme Court having, nevertheless, assumed the responsibility, the duty now devolves upon Congress either to reaffirm the Sherman act in even more definite and positive terms, or to enact new laws which will RIGIDLY CONTROL THE FORMATION OF TRUSTS, THE CONDUCT OF TRUSTS AND THE PRICES OF TRUSTS' PRODUCTS.

There are only two broad ways of preventing the oppression and extortion of the trusts.

One way is to prevent the formation of trusts. That way was the Sherman law. That was what the Sherman law was intended to do.

The second way is to allow the formation of combinations, but to control the formation, control the conduct of the corporation and control the prices of the product. Nothing short of this will be effective.

This newspaper does not maintain that the Sherman act is the only way or the best way of solving the trust problem. But the Sherman act is, or rather was, the only serious effort that had been made to solve the trust problem.

The Supreme Court does not decide that the Sherman Law is unconstitutional, although that pretext in times past has been sufficient to upset many measures in the interest of the people.

The Supreme Court goes a step farther now and says merely that the Sherman Law does not mean what it says, that the word "unreasonable," although it does not appear in the law, ought to be there.

The frequent refusal of Congress to place the word "unreasonable" in the law are overridden by the Supreme Court, which places the word in the law for Congress.

If the Sherman Law is not the best way of regulating the trusts, it is for Congress, not the Supreme Court, to decide how they shall be regulated. And Congress must now begin from the beginning and determine how the trusts shall be regulated.

The country has had the trust cattle in a field surrounded by the wooden fence of the Sherman Law. The Supreme Court has decided that the cattle SHALL BE RESTRAINED BY A STONE FENCE and not by a wooden fence.

The Supreme Court has removed the wooden fence, and as yet no stone fence has been built; the trust cattle are at large.

It is the immediate duty of Congress to re-erect the wooden fence of the Sherman Law, or to build the STONE FENCE OF REAL TRUST CONTROL.

The STONE FENCE of trust control can be built, first, by a law regulating the formation of the corporations. Such a corporaton law should provide that all corporations engaged in interstate commerce shall be formed under the supervision of the national government under effective regulations, which will compel the corporations to submit their issues of stock and bonds to the approval of the national government and prevent stock watering and over-capitalization.

Second, the conduct of their business should be regulated by a law making it a criminal offence, punishable with a jail penalty, under which the directors and managers of the corporation can be imprisoned for acts of oppression, stifling competition and restraining trade.

Third, the prices of the product of combinations and virtual monopolies must be fixed by a law giving the government the right to limit prices and restrict profits to a reasonable return upon the investment.

The STONE FENCE of adequate trust regulation is probably better than the temporary wooden structure of the Sherman anti-trust law.

We must recognize that combination in business is legitimate and can be beneficial, in view of which the government should proceed to make combination legitimate and compel it to be beneficial.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS IS IN SESSION. LET IT TAKE UP THIS QUESTION WITHOUT DELAY.

"The Yearner"

By WINIFRED BLACK

WHAT would you give for a glimpse of a real live American girl, Mr. Man?

A girl like the one you knew last Summer or Winter before last or any time on earth, before this clinging and yearning and sighing and burning lovesick maiden that's the fashion now came into the fad-light.

Where has she gone, our nice, sweet-tempered, roguish, laughing, rosy American girl, with a mind of her own, and a complexion of her own, and a walk of her own, and a wit of her own, and some kind of individual charm, and some sort of wholesome attraction?

Who is this pale-faced wax figure, with the long, lingering look and the walk of a galvanized skeleton?

The Gibson girl was bad enough. Didn't you get tired of the haughty giantesses that strode through the streets at the height of that craze? They looked neither to the right nor to the left, the Gibson gazers, but straight ahead, and they never laughed and never sighed; they just stared haughtily at nothing.

But they were dear, little, cosy, cuddly darlings compared with this "yearner" that's the fashion now.

One of the "yearners" stopped me on the street the other day. I saw her coming. She was so thin she was pitiful. Her poor little shoulders sloped down to nothing, and her chest caved in and her neck poked out, so that she looked like a Burne-Jones person come down from a stained glass window, and freezing to death at that.

"Poor thing," I said to myself, "tubercular, pretty far along, too; look at those hollow cheeks and that wan stare; wonder who she is and why they don't send her West. It might not be too late yet."

And when the yearner stopped me she turned out to be a girl I knew very well indeed last year, when she had a flashing eye and an alluring smile, and when you couldn't look at her without wondering how on earth she kept all the men from carrying her away by main force.

"Oh," said I, and tried very hard not to show how shocked I was and how sorry I felt for her, "why—how—where—er a—really, now, er—a——"

And then as I gazed in sorrow and pity upon the girl I used to know I saw that it was all effect. The hollow chest, the pale cheeks, the yearning eyes, the sad, sad creep, the tubercular skin—she was doing it on purpose.

It is the fashion now to look like a consumptive cloak model from the "Bon Marie," if you have to starve yourself to death to do it, and my poor little goose of an acquaintance was doing the starving all right, to judge by her appearance. And, at that, her frock was too small, her skirt was too skimpy, her sleeves were too tight, and her hat canted miserably over her poor, little, melancholy nose. Oh, what a dreary, sad, lonely, mournful sight she was! But she was "in the know," so I suppose she was happy.

But we, who had to look at her—dear me, our streets are like a morgue these days. I can't go out without meeting so many poor wrecks of pale-eyed, love-sick maidens that I want to go out on a farm somewhere and feed calves, just to cheer up.

Come back, dear girl we used to know; come back, do. Send this white-faced, anemic skimped, drooping young person you're affecting just now back to that dear Paris, and let her slimsy around on a mussy blue satin sofa in a curtained cozy corner that hasn't been really swept in years. Let her live on a roll and a slip of chocolate a day and "yearn" from morning till night if she wants to—it's natural for her, maybe—but, oh, do send her home across the ocean, where she came from, and give us back our own girl—the girl with the laugh, and the figure, and the dress that looked big enough for her, and the hat that let her face show, and the sense of humor. We need her; we're lonely for her.

Come back home, dear girl, come back home, and send that foreign minx about her business—do.
